Lancaster Poultry Association Appoints Male Ambassador, Reviews Progress At Banquet

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — For the first time ever, a male fills the role of Lancaster County Poultry Ambassador.

Eric Musser, a former national finalist in FFA poultry judging, said that he is enthusiastic about promoting the poultry industry.

The 17-year-old Garden Spot High School senior and son of Susan and James Musser, Bowmansville, was introduced to members of the Lancaster County Poultry Association Monday evening.

"It's been a challenging and interesting year," said Andy Bradford, president of the association, which met for its annual banquet at the Willow Valley Convention Center.

The industry grappled with meeting new animal welfare guidelines, Russia's and Japan's precarious requirements for U.S. poultry exports, sporadic outbreaks of Avian Influenza (A.I.), declining egg prices, and escalating grain costs resulting from the summer's drought.

Although the egg market remains uncertain, Bradford said the industry has always met the challenges.

In the last few months, industry members grieved the death of Dr. Jay Irwin, Lancaster County extension director emeritus. Irwin was lauded for his steady leadership since 1967. Irwin served as a liaison between the task force and the community during the A.I. outbreak in 1983-1984.

During the past year, the association donated and prepared breakfast for 125 homeless people at Water Street Rescue Mission, Lancaster. Given in honor of the governor, the meal is in lieu of presenting him complimentary gifts at the commodity reception in January.

Poultry Progress Day, conducted March 6, provided educational updates for producers. During the extension annual meeting, 175-200 omelets were served by association members. The John Schwartz Memorial Golf Outing raised $2,000 for scholarships.

Clair and Shirley High presented a check for $3,944, profits from the poultry association stand at the Ephrata Fair.

2003 Ag Directory Scheduled

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Lancaster Farming has scheduled the third-annual publication of an agricultural directory for the mid-Atlantic region.

This resources guide includes names, addresses, phone numbers, and Websites of agencies, extension, agri-industry personnel, and producer organizations throughout the Mid-Atlantic region.

Directed to producers, the directory will be included in Lancaster Farming's total circulation and be distributed at the upcoming Farm Show.

To submit or update your organization's information, e-mail farming@lancasterfarming.com or leave a message at (717) 721-4426.

The issue is scheduled for Dec. 28.

Deadline for changes or additions is Friday, November 22.

Time To 'Fall Back'

With the arrival of autumn comes Eastern Standard Time, which means the days get shorter and the nights lengthen.

It's time to "fall back" to Eastern Standard Time, which begins tomorrow. We "fall back" one hour at 2 a.m. on Sunday, Oct. 27.

So turn your clocks back one hour before going to bed tonight. Remember to adjust animal feeding and milking schedules accordingly.

PennDOT Gives Grant For Railroad Grain Facility

DAVE LEFEVER

DANVILLE (Northumberland Co.) — A new grain transfer station along the Canadian Pacific Railway near Danville should boost profits for livestock producers in the area by helping with feed transportation costs and bulk purchasing leverage.

It will also provide jobs and cut down on truck traffic in the area, according to officials from the Pennsylvania Department of Transportation (PennDOT), which has rallied behind the project.

PennDOT contributed $100,000 toward construction of the new railway siding and grain facility in Rush Township here.

The site, across the Susquehanna River from Danville, is owned by Don and Bryan Cotner of Don Cotner Farms.

Don and his son, Bryan, manage an egg packaging operation and 400,000 laying hens within a few miles of the site. They also farm about 1,000 acres of corn and soybeans.

Bryan Cotner will run the grain transfer station, which he expects to be primarily a dropoff point for soybean meal from the Midwest.

The PennDOT grant covers half of the projected building cost and is administered under the Railroad Freight Assistance Program. This program provides funding to build or maintain railroad facilities deemed beneficial to Pennsylvania's economy and infrastructure.

According to Elizabeth Voras, PennDOT deputy secretary, the project should create and maintain jobs as well as help preserve Pennsylvania roadways.

"We're all aware of the importance of our highway and bridge network," Voras said. "But too often we take for granted the important role played by ... railroads in contributing to Pennsylvania's total transportation system and economic vitality."

"Every truck you can take off the road means that much less (road) maintenance," she said.

The Cotners joined PennDOT officials and Rush Township supervisors at the site Oct. 17 for PennDOT's inauguration of the project. Construction was already under way, including excavation of the unloading pit.

According to Bryan Cotner, four overhead grain bins with a total capacity of 200 tons will be

Grange Banquet To Spotlight Organization

WASHINGTON (Washington Co.) — In conjunction with the 130th State Session of the Pennsylvania State Grange, the All-Granger Banquet is scheduled for 6:30 p.m., on Monday, Oct. 28 here at the South Franklin Fire Hall.

Hosted by Greene and Washington county Pomona Granges, the evening's event will bring together distinguished guests and 500-plus Grangers from across the state.

The banquet highlights will include entertainment by "The Accidentals" and the announcement

CATTLE· Compared to Thursday, lean slaughter cows sold mostly steady on a fairly good run However, Breaking and Boning cows were few and far between, therefore a trend could not be established. The quality of the supply was very mixed, ranging from very full to fairly gaunt. Buyer attendance remains light for the Monday cow sale, although the few on hand took care of business by not letting the supply affect their demand. Demand continues to be held up by relatively bullish carcass cutouts; which have continued to hold firm for some time now. Slaughter bulls sold about steady on the stock that was comparable. The New Holland bull runs continue to be made up of some very fancy higher dressing type bulls, where as one can imagine bidding is very active. Slaughter cows made up nearly 48 percent of the run.

SLAUGHTER COWS· PERCENT LEAN WEIGHT BULK LOW DRESSING Breakers 75-80 over 1400 lbs, Boners 80-85 over 1200 lbs 38 25-42 00 Lean (Hi-Yield) 85-88 over 1200 lbs 37.00-37.75 34.25-36.25 Lean 88-90 over 1000 lbs 32.75-37.75 28.50-32 50 Lean (Light-Wt) 85-90 750-1000 lbs 27 75-32.00 24.00-28.50 SLAUGHTER BULLS. Bullocks: Few Select 1-2 1125-1480 lbs 52.75- 57.50.

CALVES: Compared to Thursday, veal calves sold steady to 5.00 lower on a fairly good run for a Monday. Holstein bull calves weighing from 95-125 lbs sold 2.00-12.00 lower, with lighter weight bulls trading with a firmer undertone on a light test. Due to the very light supply, Holstein heifers were not tested.

VEALERS: Few Utility 70-115 lbs 11 00-20.00. RETURNED TO FARM: Holstein bulls 95-125 lbs 80.00-112 00, mostly 90.00-105.00; 90 lbs 75.00; 85 lbs 55.00-70.00; 75 lbs 60.00. SHEEP: Compared to Thursday, slaughter lambs sold firm to 10.00 higher. This is the second week in a row that prices were sharply higher on the lamb supply It is also interesting to note that this is also the second week that the bulk of the slaughter goat run sold lower, with this psychology failing to spill over into the sheep ring. The majority of the increase in the lamb market was noted on lighter weight 40-80 lb animals, as 90-120 pounders sold mostly steady Slaughter ewes sold mostly steady to firm on continued good demand

SLAUGHTER LAMBS Choice and Prime 2-3 40-80 lbs 100 00-135 00, 90-120 lbs 90 00-100 00.

SLAUGHTER EWES Good and Choice Yearlings and 2 year-olds 45 00-55 00 Utility and Good 1-3 30 00-45 00 GOATS· Compared to last week, Kid goats sold firm to 4 00 higher on a light run Yearlings sold very mixed in sporadic bidding, although the bulk of the run trended 3.00-4.00 lower on the Selection 1 and 2's; with prices slightly higher on the light run of Selection 3 Yearlings Nannies also sold mixed with lighter weights trading 1.00-4 00 lower, and 100-140 pounders trending with a higher undertone. Wethers sold weak to 4 00 lower, with a good run of Billies trading firm to 4.00 higher, with instances of 10.00-12.00 higher on the lighter weights. It has been a few weeks since there have been some real fancy Billies on the market, and although there was no overflow, the quality was greatly improved as several highly muscled animals moved through the ring. Buyer attendance was fairly good early, with several buyers filling their needs quickly. However, bidding was fairly slow late as the bleachers were relatively empty; and with over 1300 goats on hand, demand was the biggest issue as many buyers already had already filled their orders. Kids. Selection 1 20-40 lbs 48.00-52.00; 40-60 lbs 55.00-60.00. Selection 2 20-40 lbs 28.00-36.00; 40-60 lbs 44.00-48.00. CATTLE: Compared to Thursday, slaughter steers sold with a firmer undertone on Monday; with Tuesday's supply trading steady to weak. Monday's supply included some very nice fats, and bidding was active due in part to the above average quality stock on offer. On Tuesday the supply was comprised of a lot of over-finished and heavy steers; which buyers were fairly hesitant to procure. A higher close on CME finished steer prices lent support to the producer to kick off the week, with contracts 60 to 122 points higher on Monday and 20 to 62 points higher on Tuesday; also, boxed beef cutout values were nearly 2.00 higher the first two days of the week. Combine climbing futures prices and cutout values, with the Western feedyards moving their fats at mostly 66.00 late last week, and it was definitely setup to benefit the producer. However, due to the very mixed supply over the two day sale, buyers were not sure which direction to take as some of the very fancy Prime steers hit 72.00; while at the same time the bulk of the Choice steers were trading with a weaker undertone. Holstein steers were in very short supply, with the bulk of the run trading about steady. The slaughter heifer run was also fairly light, with the few on hand trending near steady. Lean slaughter cows sold weak to fully 1.00 lower on an increase in supply, with Breaking and Boning cows trading weak to nearly 2.00 lower on a light test. The supply continues to be flooded with lean cows, with the fleshier types still pretty light. Demand remains fairly good, although when you combine large runs with light buyer attendance, the supply overtakes the demand. The slaughter bull supply was very light, and was not comparable with Thursday's fancy run. The supply included 44 percent steers, 1 percent heifers, 43 percent cows, 17 percent bulls, with the balance feeders.

SLAUGHTER STEERS: High Choice and Prime 2-4 1305-1490 lbs 66.00-70.25, few fancy singles 71.00-72.00. Choice 2-3 1195-1480 lbs 63.35-68.75, mostly 63.50-67.50, heavyweights 1505-1615 lbs 62.75-63.75. Select and low Choice 2-3 1360-1495 lb 63.00-65.75, heavyweights 1545-1670 lbs 55.50-62.50. Select 1-3 1085-1445 lbs 61.25-63.00.

HOLSTEIN STEERS: Few Choice 2-3 1355-1500 lbs 54.00-58.00. Few Select and low Choice 2-3 1250-1545 lbs 48.50-53.75. Few Select 1-2 1250-1305 lbs few 48.00-49.75.

SLAUGHTER BULLS: Few Yield grade 1 1345-2030 lbs 43.75-48.00, couple high dressing 51.75-57.50, few low dressing 42.00.

CALVES: Compared to last Tuesday, veal calves sold fully steady on good buyer attendance and fairly active bidding. Holstein bull calves suitable for special-fed veal barns sold sharply higher in active trading and very good buyer demand. After several weeks of lower prices, a few new buyers entered the market which led to rather active bidding. Holstein heifers sold with a weaker undertone on a very light run. Buyers are still actively pursuing heifers, although with the supply remaining very light, a good market test is hard to come by. The supply included 618 head in the state graded sale, with around 96 percent of the supply returned to feed.

VEALERS: Standard and Good 85-115 lbs 25.00-35.00. Utility 45-85 lbs 12.00-25.00. RETURNED TO FARM: Holstein Bulls 95-125 lbs 100.00-122.00; 90 lbs 117.00; 85 lbs 75.00; 80 lbs 32.00. CATTLE Compared to Tuesday, High Choice and Prime slaughter steers sold steady to firm for the entirety of the auction However, the bulk of the Choice steers sold firm to 50 higher early, with instances of nearly 1 00 higher, only to trade with a lower undertone late Buyers were in good attendance, and bidding was very active in the early rounds, although the colder temperatures outside definitely cooled the action off inside the ring late The supply was made up of a good selection of finished steers, and only a handful were over-finished, even the heavyweight stock sold with a higher undertone early Remember that even with a weaker undertone late most loads still averaged from 65 00-67 00, which is very competitive with the direct market Holstein steers were in very light supply, with the stock on hand either under-finished or going back on feed Slaughter heifers were also hard to come by on Thursday, with most of the run too fat, or too old A good run of slaughter cows sold fully 1 00 higher A very good showing of Breaking and Boning cows really had buyers paying attention, as it has been a while since a good run of fleshy cows was on offer. The slaughter bull run was not comparable to Tuesdays' very light offering, although the general undertone was sharply higher on the thin test The supply included 41 percent steers, 7 percent heifers, 33 percent cows, 7 percent bulls, with the balance feeders.

HOG RECEIPTS: 692 head, last Monday 696; last year 1115.

Receipts: 692. Compared to last Monday, barrows and gilts sold fully 1.00-3.00 lower. Many hog buyers felt that it was time to realign somewhat with the Western terminal markets; which are moving hogs weaker from around 28.00. Lean hog futures also took a hit at Mondays' close, closing down 10-97 cents. The general packer attitude at Mondays' auction was we need them, but we don't need them bad enough to keep paying 38.00-38.50 for the fancy ones. However, feeders need to remember that even with the bulk of the hogs bringing from 31.00-35.50, that it is still a 3.00-7.00 premium when compared to the Western market.

New Holland Feeder Pig Auction

NEW HOLLAND, PA
October 23, 2002
Report Supplied By USDA

Receipts: 471 Last Week: 246 Year Ago: 448.

This weeks' feeder pig run was not tested, due to last weeks' very light showing. Although, this week over 35 percent of the supply went back on feed, as feeders begin to show some interest after several weeks of very light participation. On the weights that were comparable, slaughter pigs sold with a higher undertone; except for the 30-35 pounders, which sold noticeably lower. The crowd at Wednesdays' auction was very light, and prices held up very well considering the light buyer attendance; and the fact that receipts were 200 head stronger when compared to last weeks'. The Western terminal hog markets continue to trend lower the first half of the week; with prices ranging from 26.00-28.00 at Wednesdays' close. Locally, hog prices are ranging from 31.00-35.50, although many producers are preparing for the next cycle of lower prices.

All pigs were weighed and graded on arrival and sold by the hundred weights.

PURINA SERVICE

CUSTOM PELLETS MAKE MIXING FEED A SNAP ON HOOVER DAIRY

When Gordon Hoover switched to a Purina feeding program about 10 years ago, he did it for the high level of service and no-hassle custom feed mix they deliver.

Hoover, who owns and operates the 120-cow dairy here with his wife Carole and their three daughters, used to harvest high moisture corn from the farm and buy the rest from several neighbors "here and there." A variety of feed commodities were delivered to the farm. These had to be stored, then weighed and loaded at each mixing. Ingredients could shrink in storage or even blow away while being moved on the farm.

That hassle was eliminated by Purina custom pellets. Now, Hoover doesn't worry about harvesting and storing high moisture corn or handling separate commodities. The complete pelleted feed, "formulated and mixed just for us," provides dry ground corn as well as all the protein- and mineral-balancing needs for the TMR, allowing Hoover to focus on herd management and growing alfalfa and corn for forage.

"We simplified our feeding program with this complete feed," Hoover said.

For good digestion and cow health, he aims for a 60:40 forage-to-grain ratio in the TMR, "pushing forages rather than concentrate." Under this program, "production has been very consistent."

Hoover's latest rolling herd average stands at 23,300 pounds of milk, 853 of fat, and 676 of protein. That meets his goal of being within the top 10 percent of Lancaster County DHIA herds - without using BST.

Low SCC counts have earned Hoover quality milk premiums for more than five consecutive years, another sign of overall good management.

Hoover's feedman is Doug High of High Bros., Gordonville. High visits the farm every other week to do the nutritional work and balance the rations. While Hoover has come to expect consistent, high-quality feed from Purina, he said it's the accessible service that really makes the difference.

"My philosophy on feed companies is that they're all working out of the same playbook," Hoover said. "My biggest criteria is service. They have to meet my needs and deliver the feed on time."

For Hoover, that means Purina.

Daily National Grain Market Summary

St. Joseph, MO
October 23, 2002
Report Supplied By USDA

Wheat and corn bids continued to drift lower while soybean bids made a comeback from Tuesday. Wheat 1 to 10 cents lower. Corn 1 to 2 cents lower. Sorghum 3 cents lower. Soybeans 5 to 8 cents higher. Winter wheat planting is moving along ahead of normal and with moisture on top of that, bids declined. Export sales have been slow this week for wheat after last weeks large bookings.

Corn bids were slightly lower for the fourth consecutive day with most of the pressure coming from declines in wheat. A couple overnight export orders and higher soybean bids, limited losses in corn. Wet weather across the Midwest and Corn Belt areas has slowed bean harvest and could cause some yield losses. Stronger bids are also a reaction to dry weather in Northern Brazil and wet conditions in Southern areas.

East Fluid Milk And Cream Review

Madison, Wis.
October 23, 2002
Report Supplied by USDA

Spot prices of class II cream, dollars per lb. butterfat: F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast: 1.3748-1.494. Delivered Equivalent: Atlanta: 1.3959-1.5017 mostly 1.4065-1.4382.

PRICES OF CONDENSED SKIM, dollars per lb. wet solids, F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast: Class II, includes monthly formula prices: .9850-1.0300; Class III - spot prices - .8700-.9500.

SPOT SHIPMENTS OF GRADE A MILK: FLORIDA: This week - 187, Out 0; last week - In 200, Out 0; last year - In 74, Out 0. SOUTHEAST STATES: This week - In 0, Out 0; last week - In 0, Out 0; last year - In 49, Out 0.

During September, milk production in the 20 major states totaled 11.75 billion pounds, up 3.3% from September 2001. The following are the September-to-September changes for selected states: Texas [9] .3%, New York [3] .3%, Virginia [1] .4%, Florida unchanged, Vermont -0.9%, Pennsylvania -0.8%, and Kentucky -3.2%.

Milk production is steady to heavier in the region. The weather is cooler and some areas in New York and New England experienced rain and snow during the past week. Some snow accumulations were reported early in the week in central New England. The cooler weather in the Southeast is helping milk output rebound. Output in the Northeast is steady at or near the low point in the annual cycle. In the Southeast, milk production is coming up in most states, but the need for milk in Florida continues. Butterfat and protein tests of incoming milk are little changed from the past few weeks. Bottled milk sales range from fairly good to poor, mostly steady In areas where milk sales were slower, more surplus milk was evident.

Elsewhere, surplus milk volumes are light and many operation are running on abbreviated schedules. Southeastern and some Middle Atlantic manufacturing plants are operating on limited schedules.

The condensed skim markets are unchanged and prices are steady to higher Some producers are trying to push Class III prices higher, but with mixed success.

The fluid cream market remains mixed, but was quite soft early this week. Suppliers report having quite a bit of cream to clear on Tuesday, but were in better shape when Wednesday's orders came in. Spot prices are often higher due to the moderate increase in the CME average butter price last week. However, multiples moved lower early in the week. There were reports of some large cream users offering cream rather then buying spot loads this week. Another indication that some users feel that they have enough cream was the report that they are becoming less flexible when it comes to accepting loads. Ice cream output is about steady at moderate levels. Cream cheese output is moderate to heavy, but some producers are not looking for spot loads. Apparently they have enough cream under contract to meet their needs. Sour cream and dip production is picking up as Thanksgiving needs should soon be shipped, if they have not already been delivered. Churning activity ranges from light to heavy, mostly moderate.

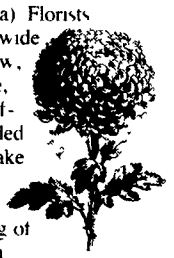
The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

OCT. 28–NOV. 3, 2002

ALL HALLOWS EVE, OCT. 31

MUM'S THE WORD

Painted daisy, Nippon daisy, feverfew, Shasta daisy, or any number of others they're all chrysanthemums, the bane of spelling-bee contestants and taxonomists (plants formerly belonging to the genus Chrysanthemum are now divided among several genera) Florists love mums for their fall bounty and wide range of colors, including yellow, orange, red, rust, purple, cream, rose, lavender, and white Feverfew self-sows freely, others can easily be divided or grown from seeds Fewer buds make larger blooms, if that's your intent The chrysanthemum is November's flower, and it's said that the unfolding of her petals represents human perfection



. . . all looks yellow to the jaundiced eye.

–Alexander Pope English poet (1688–1744)

OPINION

Many Farmers Are Concerned About SB 1413, And Most of Them Should Be

Editor's note: Though we welcome guest editorials, sometimes the opinions of the writers differ from the editor's. For the benefit of our diverse readership, we strive to provide a balance of opinion in Lancaster Farming.

The rhetoric is growing so strong on both sides of the current debate in Harrisburg over Senate Bill 1413. Many folks who have not studied the matter must be helplessly confused about the cause of all this commotion. Behind it, one would expect to find an exhaustively complete and complex piece of legislation that by its nature invites the radically different interpretations we are witnessing.

Surprisingly, the opposite is true. SB 1413 is such a simple affair that the average person would require less than five minutes to read the entire document. In fact, it is the oversimplification and subtle reasoning contained in this potential law that renders it at the same time so controversial and so dangerous to the democratic process.

The reason for the bill, we are told by its sponsors and advocates, is roughly to "protect our largest industry" from any one or a combination of the following three major threats: 1) neighbors, particularly those who are not farmers themselves, 2) the communities in which a farm resides, and/or 3) local elected officials, who, we are told, are busily trying to shut down farms all over the commonwealth. So there they are . . . the true "enemies" of modern agriculture.

My guess is that there are actually very few farmers in Pennsylva-

To Learn About The New USDA National Organic Standards

On Oct. 21, Agriculture Secretary Ann M. Veneman launched the implementation of USDA's national organic standards for agricultural products to provide consistent labeling on products across the nation.

"Today, when consumers see the USDA national organic seal on products, they will know that the products labeled organic will be consistent across the country," said Veneman. "Organic agriculture is increasing and organic farmers across the country have been looking forward to the release of these regulations with anticipation they will create consumer confidence in their products."

The USDA reports standards were developed from extensive industry input and hundreds of thousands of public comments. As of Oct. 21, any organic agricultural product must meet USDA standards in order to be sold as "organic." Along with the national organic standards, labeling rules were developed to help consumers know the exact organic content of the food they buy. Consumers can tell organically produced food from conventionally produced food by looking at package labels and watching for signs in the supermarket.

"We're very pleased with the work that USDA employees and the Organic Standards Board have done over the years to finalize these regulations," said Veneman. "Consumers will begin to see the results of these efforts."

The USDA Organic Seal tells consumers that a product is at least 95 percent organic. Processed products that contain 70-95 percent organic ingredients (made with organic fruit for example) can use the phrase "made with organic ingredients" on the label but they can't display the seal.

A recent USDA study determined that U.S. organic farmland has increased from approximately 1.4 million acres to 2.4 million acres. Now any farm or processor that wants to sell products as organically produced must adhere to these new standards. The requirements include operating under an organic system plan approved by an accredited certifying agent and using materials consistent with the National List of Allowed Synthetic and Prohibited-Non-Synthetic Substances.

To assist farmers and produce handlers with the cost of becoming certified, the USDA is administering a $5 million cost share program in all 50 states, the U.S. territories, the District of Columbia, and Puerto Rico. This program expands the original cost share program that covered only producers and included only 15 states. The Pennsylvania Certified Organic Organization is currently able to certify producers.

The organic crop production standards require that the land will have no prohibited substances applied to it for at least three years before the harvest of an organic crop. The use of genetically modified crops, sewage sludge, or ionizing radiation is not allowed under the standards. The use of organic seeds is preferred but farmers may use nonorganic seeds and planting stock under certain conditions. Management practices including physical, mechanical, and biological controls will be the primary means allowed to control weeds, crop pests, and diseases. If these means do not adequately control the problem a biological, botanical, or synthetic substance approved for use on the National List may be used.

The new standards provide direction for organic animal agriculture as well. Animals for slaughter must be raised under organic management from the last third of gestation, or for poultry no later than the second day of life. Producers are required to feed livestock agricultural feed products that are 100 percent organic. However, vitamin and mineral supplements may be added to organic animal feed.

Farmers who want to convert an entire, distinct dairy herd to organic production can do so by providing 80 percent organically produced feed for 9 months, followed by 3 months of 100 percent organically produced feed. Organically raised animals may not be given hormones to promote growth, or antibiotics. Preventive management practices, including the use of vaccines, will be used to keep animals healthy.

Organic producers are prohibited from withholding treatment from a sick or injured animal; however, animals treated with a prohibited medication may not be sold as organic. The organic standards require all organically raised animals must have access to the outdoors, including access to pasture for ruminants. They may be temporarily confined only for reasons of health, safety, the animal's stage of production, or to protect soil or water quality.

The USDA will set aside $3 million per year for fiscal years 2003-2007 to administer competitive research grants on organic production, largely through the Cooperative State Research, Education, and Extension Service. The research will focus on determining desirable traits for organic commodities; identifying marketing and policy constraints on the expansion of organic agriculture; and conducting advanced research on organic farms, including production, marketing and socioeconomic research.

According to USDA figures, the organic industry is growing between 20 and 25 percent annually, and has been for the last several years. U.S. retail sales of organic foods reached approximately $7.8 billion in 2000, with global sales topping $17.5 billion.

The USDA has set up a website providing much more information on the organic standards at www.ams.usda.gov/nop.

❖ FARM FORUM ❖

Editor:

Once again, the dairy industry is in a crisis mode. Prices paid producers stand at 30-year lows. No matter what size dairy operation, 50 cows or 1,000, the price of 100 pounds of milk paid to the dairy producers is disgustingly paltry for the amount of capitol, labor, and pride every dairy family places in their operations.

I am ashamed of the leadership roles, both governmental and in our own industry, with respect to the current crisis. I fully understand the laws of supply and demand, but it makes no sense to import the equivalent of more than 600 tanker loads of milk products daily into this country when our producers are being led to believe we have too much product. Personally, I believe that any milk handler or dairy co-op that imports dairy product into this country, should take a very hard look at their leadership.

There is no doubt that the

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

JUST A MINUTE, GOD!

Background Scripture:
Habakkuk.
Devotional Reading:
Hebrews 11:32 through 12:2.

I can't help admiring Habakkuk for his forthright relationship with God. There is no pretense, no muttering under his breath, and he comes right out and makes an impassioned complaint: "O Lord, how long shall I cry for help, and thou wilt not hear? Or cry to thee 'Violence!' and thou wilt not save?" (1:2). This is the Hebrew equivalent for "Hey, just a minute God, I want an explanation!"

Habakkuk wasn't the first complainant, nor would he be the last. We too want to know how God can permit the perversion of justice and stand by while evil people prevail. As I write this, tomorrow will be the anniversary of September 11, and many are still challenging God to answer for this horrendous tragedy and injustice. God, how can you be "silent when the wicked swallows up the man more righteous than he?" (1:13).

Note that God doesn't become angry with Habakkuk's audacious challenge, nor does he censure him. Instead, he explains that the Chaldeans, evil as they are, will be instruments through which he will execute his will. Think of the irony here: God says he will use the Chaldeans to chastise his people. The Chaldeans would also be known as the Babylonians, and Babylonia comprised much of what we know of today as Iraq. I pray that God will not use today's Chaldeans to chastise us.

Running & Reading

God finally responds to the challenge, promising an answer that will not be hidden: " 'Write the vision, make it plain upon tablets, so he may run who reads it . . . For still the vision awaits its time; it hastens to the end — it will not lie. If it seem slow, wait for it . . ." (2:2,3).

Typically, Habakkuk wants an answer right now. Typically, God says that we should just be patient it will coming! And that is another age-old complaint from God's children: how long must we wait?

God gives a two-part answer: "Behold, he whose soul is not upright in him shall fail, but the righteous shall live by his faith" (2:4). Without any reference to just when this will happen, God says the unrighteous persons will fail. In the five woes (2:6-19), Habakkuk spells out the why and how of that fall. Each woe indicates that the unrighteous will destroy themselves.

The second part of the answer is an assurance to the righteous. The righteous person can look forward to the time when he or she will be vindicated. Until that vindication, he can live by his faith and trust in that future even though injustice and corruption seem to prevail. The righteous live by trusting, not in present circumstances, but the promise of God: "But the Lord is in his holy temple; let all the earth keep silence before him" (2:20). God is in charge, so we can live without all the answers.

The Greater Benefit

Habakkuk began with an honest complaint and the Lord received it without prejudice. He asked for the alleviation of particular ills, but God does not tell him when these petitions will bear fruit. He then makes a discovery that perhaps has eluded many of us: fellowship with God is more important and of greater benefit than prosperity and an immediate end to all evil. "Though the fig tree does not blossom, nor fruit be on the vines, the produce of the olive fail and the fields yield no food, the flock be cut off from the fold and there is no herd in the stall, yet I will rejoice in the Lord, I will joy in the God of my salvation" (3:17,18).

It is natural and understandable for us to seek and demand answers from the Lord, but the solution is not specific answers or grants, but the abiding presence of God in the midst of a broken world, so that we can live in the power of his promise which is the highest and greatest gift he can bestow upon us.

Miracle II Product
STRUCTURED WATER ENERGIZERS

→• Contains tubes with Miracle II Soap and Neutralizer
- Cleans and energizers your drinking water or rain water
- Used in industrial applications such as swimming pools greenhouses hog finishing houses feed lots dairies & farms
- Changes the water ions from positive to negative
- Increases the PH factor in your water

Testimonial:

We had just been hearing good results abgout the Water Energizers on the conference calls and decided to put one on the rain water line because the water had been having such a bad odor this past summer We thought it's time to get the cistern cleaned out again which is always quite an ordeal and smelly and the opening to the cistern is inside the store at Glick's Natural Products
Anyway, this past Tuesday PM , Oct 1st, we got a plumber to install a Water Energizer The following morning the water had no more bad odor! We could hardly believe our noses but there simply was no bad smell left and it felt silky clean Normally when using the shower bath it wasn't a good experience due to the bad smell, but on Wed morning it was quite pleasant and refreshing - what a relief

Simeon Stoltzfus, Millersburg, PA

Notes:

The company told us the Water Energizer is maintenance free and will last a lifetime There are no parts to replace and no power required to run the Water Energizer The water simply flows through the Water Energizer and as it makes contact with the tubes containing Miracle II Soap and Neutralizer, the water changes
In a recent test in a commercial greenhouse one side of the greenhouse was set up with its normal watering system and the other side was up with a Water Energizer The crops on the side of the greenhouse with the Water Energizer were ready to harvest & ship a full eight days to two weeks sooner than the crops without the Water Energizer
It was also reported that lawns became greener and healthier after watering with Energized Water
With swimming pools it was reported that the maintenance bill was $200 a month less I believe this was due to needing less chemicals

Prices:

Residential Size $900 (fits 3/4"-1 1/4" water pipes)
Commercial/Industrial Size $1500 (fits 2" plumbing)

MILK PRODUCTION REPORT: GOOD NEWS, BAD NEWS

- September milk up 3.3 percent.
- Each cow producing more milk.
- Cow numbers, however, are down.

USDA issued a much-anticipated September milk production report. The news was mixed. Milk production continues ahead of market needs. September milk production for 20 select states was up 3.3 percent. That is bad as far as milk prices are concerned. That said, a much closer inspection offers some good news, that cow numbers in the nation's dairy herd have peaked out and are trending lower. In fact, that is good news!

September milk production was at 11.8 billion pounds. Although this figure is much lower than earlier in the year (it was 13 billion pounds in May), it is still ahead of year-ago figures. In addition, milk production in the third quarter of the year (July-September) was up 3.4 percent from the same period a year ago.

States with the highest positive rates of growth in September were Arizona (15.7 percent), New Mexico (13.1 percent), Texas (9.3 percent), Idaho (6.1 percent), and California (5.9 percent). With the exception of Texas, all of these states saw growth in cow numbers.

So, where is the good news in all of this?

Cow numbers have actually peaked out for the year and are headed down. This was anticipated since replacement values fell about $200-$300 per head a month or two ago. This shows economic adjustment and is exactly what the market is expecting.

In 2001, cow numbers for 20 major states fell 0.44 percent, which is considered normal. Cow numbers in 2002, however, grew from 7.744 million head in February to 7.790 million head by August. It declined to 7.786 in September. This trend will likely continue until spring 2003.

The market conditions are very painful for dairy producers who cannot cash flow under current milk and feed prices. The marketplace is expecting an adjustment to occur that will better match supply and demand. In fact, milk prices won't rise until this happens. Thus, the September milk production report is the first real evidence that suggest this adjustment has begun.

The next bit of market adjustment that needs to occur is reduction in inventories of dairy products, particularly butter, cheese, and nonfat dry milk. Retailers will likely offer specials this holiday season on butter and cheese. This should help allow the U.S. dairy industry to enter the new year with a better balance between supply, demand, and inventories.

Average Farm Feed Costs for Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's last week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania.

Remember, these are averages, so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

Strickler, Myers Recognized At Berks 4-H Celebration

For Sattazahns, 4-H Involvement Stretches Back 70 Years

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Photos certainly can tell a tale — in this case, a tale about a family's more than 70-year involvement in 4-H.

Recently, Karen Sattazahn Mohn was looking through the Sattazahn box of pictures to show how much 4-H meant to her family. A few pictures stood out.

At the 1952 Reading Fair, a float bore the ever-present 4-H clover. Another was of her dad, Clarence, and his brother Bob in mule race years ago at the fair. Clarence, like his dad, Ray M., loved mules and enjoyed showing them. Needless to say, Clarence, number 40, crossed the finish line first.

"I wonder if that race will ever come back to the Reading Fair?" said Karen, who spoke to more than 100 Penn State Extension, family, and friends Monday evening at the 88th Annual Meeting of the Berks County Cooperative Extension Association.

The annual meeting was a celebration of 4-H during this centennial year.

Clarence carried projects in dairy, swine, poultry, corn, electricity, and tractor safety, noted Karen. She even remembered her father receiving a 4-H certificate from the Farm and Home and Electric Club in 1954. "The sticker in the lower corner states, 'boys and girls club work,'" she said.

Karen's paternal grandparents, Ray M. and Elsie Sattazahn, "were very active in extension work," she said. "Grandpa was open to new farming practices from an early age. The extension service encouraged him to try double-cropping."

During the presentation, Karen showed photos of her grandfather and some of his work with extension. "He started clover in the wheat field and, from the looks of things, it was a success."

While her grandfather served as 4-H leader, her grandmother Elsie "often found time to assist with 4-H projects," said Karen. "She also helped to complete record books and was always there to pitch in when needed."

As the family grew, so did their dedication to 4-H. "All of Grandpa and Grandma's children, and all of their children, and all of their children, have benefited from 4-H," Karen said. "We are hopeful that the fifth generation will continue that trend."

Ray R. Sattazahn, Karen's uncle, was a member of the Berks County beef and dairy 4-H clubs. He serves as a leader with the Little Swatara 4-H Club in Lebanon County. His daughters Juliet, Phyliss, and Barbara an children have been active in the Lebanon 4-H program for many years.

Said Karen, "Ray believes that 4-H helps to develop youth into respectable adults."

Robert, another uncle, was also active in the county beef club and the electric, tractor safety, and Stouchsburg Community Club. His projects included beef, electric, swine, chickens, vegetables, and dairy.

4-H gave Bob a chance to meet people from all over the country, Karen noted. Bob's wife Jane was a 4-H member and wrote news articles for the Lebanon County 4-H fair.

Bob and Jane's children are involved in 4-H dairy clubs, including Rebecca. "Nick, George, and Clark also enjoyed their 4-H years," Karen said.

Clark was one of the first family members to try a different

Emilie Miller and Brett Treichler were presented merits of recognition at the Berks County meeting.

Speakers at Monday's annual Berks County Extension Meeting included, from left, Karen Sattazahn Mohn, Kathleen Ott, Beth Hartman, Rick Kauffman, and Zach Gorddard.

Fay Strickler, center, was honored with the first-ever 30-year recognition award Monday evening at the annual Berks County extension meeting. Clyde Myers, right, was honored for 25 years of service to extension. Fred Davis, regional director of Penn State Cooperative Extension and Outreach, presented the awards.

breed of dairy cattle Brown Swiss. "Annie" was named grand champion of both Kutztown and Reading fairs.

The family watches as other members grow from their involvement in various 4-H projects.

Robert Sattazahn has been treasurer of the Southeast District Dairy Show since 1980, after becoming a leader at age 21. "He has been a leader for 47 years," noted Karen. "What an awesome accomplishment."

Said Karen, "4-H has allowed us to be accountable for our planning or lack of planning. You cannot show a dairy animal without many hours of hard work, preparing your animal, teaching her to walk properly, and leading her around the barnyard."

And 4-H has its rewards as well. "4-H has been good to my parents. My dad met my mom, Marlene Epting, through 4-H."

Donna Heffner, right, was honored for 20 years of service to Berks County Cooperative Extension, Dawn Knepp, left, was awarded for five years of service. Presenting the awards was Fred Davis, regional director of Penn State Cooperative Extension and Outreach.

Karen noted her two brothers and her are very glad "our parents were active 4-H members," she said.

Karen, from Womelsdorf, is married to Steve Mohn. Karen is an elementary librarian for the Eastern Lebanon County School District.

Their own daughter, Ashley, 8, will join 4-H next year. As for projects, "rabbits keep popping up," said Karen. "Her grandfather had an earlier interest in them, too. Thanks, Dad!"

Karen's mother Marlene was an active member of the baby beef, sewing, and cooking clubs. "Mom met a lot of good people through her 4-H work," Karen said. "Notice how many (4-H members) say that."

Karen herself showed dairy cattle for 10 years, a "very rewarding experience for me," she said. "4-H and its hands-on approach enabled me to control the outcome of many an event."

Karen spoke about her grandmother and others, including Aunt Dianne, and many in the family who assisted her with 4-H projects. "Extension Agent Mae Beilder Hostetter was a wonderful asset to this county's 4-H program," Karen said. "Her genuine love and care for you as a 4-H'er was always noticed."

Karen also detailed the many ways the extended family has been involved in 4-H and what it has done for them.

On her 1979 4-H Blue Form, Karen quoted what she wrote: " 'I feel I was very lucky to have the opportunity to be a 4-H mem-

Farm Show 2003 Exhibitor Spotlight

Exclusive to Lancaster Farming

Kubota Celebrates 30 Years, Expands Farm Show Display

COLUMBUS, Ohio — A renovated Farm Show Complex with increased space for ag exhibitors will greatly improve the chance for farmers to get the information they want from equipment companies.

That's the way Tom Burton, Pennsylvania sales manager for Kubota Tractor Corporation, sees it. He believes the new Farm Show will reverse a trend in recent years of decreased contact between equipment suppliers and farmers.

"It's an opportunity for farmers and companies to interact again," Burton said. "This interaction process lets the farmers tell the company representatives what they need, want, and desire. Farmers will get to view technology and have in-depth conversations."

Burton said that the updated Farm Show Complex will help revitalize his company's presence in the agricultural marketplace by attracting potential customers not only from this region, but also from around the world.

"This expanded facility is of international caliber, both in size and presence," he said.

Farm Show preparations coincide with Kubota's 30th anniversary this year. The company was the first to offer a 4-wheel-drive compact tractor — the model B6000 in 1974 — for farm or utility use, Burton said.

Kubota's 30th anniversary celebration includes the introduction of 61 new products, many of which are useful to production and/or hobby farmers, Burton said. The lineup includes a "new generation" of Kubota tractors called the Grand L series. Many of these products will be on display at the 1,200-square-foot exhibit area Kubota has reserved for the upcoming Pennsylvania Farm Show in January.

"I'm excited about it," Burton said of the Farm Show's revitalized focus on agriculture. 'It's the right thing to do."

ber all of these years, and wish that every boy and girl could have this same opportunity,'" she said. "Who might have guessed that over 20 years later I would be addressing this group gathered here this evening on the wonders of 4-H and how it has affected my family?"

She thanked extension and said, "We have gained so much from 4-H and are truly thankful for this wonderful organization," she said. "4-H has helped us to be fair, caring, respectful, and trustworthy citizens. We have learned to be responsible individuals in our communities. Thank you, 4-H."

At the meeting, Beth Hartman, fifth grade teacher at Shiloh Hills Elementary School, spoke about several 4-H projects that can help students learn about the world. "We empower youth by adding 4-H to the classroom," she said.

Several projects included "Meet the Plants," "Catch the Bug," and "Sciencing With Snails."

Zach Gorddard, sixth grader at Shiloh Hills, spoke about constructing models of bugs using a dichotomous key. "Students got colorful and creative while making their models," he said.

Kathleen Ott, also a sixth grader at Shiloh Hills, studied the scientific method using snails. One of them was finding out what snails would eat in the "snail smorgasbord," she said.

In an embryology project, Zach noted he enjoyed the "candling" process. "It's much like an X-ray," he said. "You can look at the embryos while they're growing."

At the banquet, several service awards were presented, including a first-ever 30-year-award recognition. That award was presented to Fay Strickler, who is national president of Epsilon Sigma Phi, the cooperative extension professionals' organization. She presides over more than 8,000 members in land-grant universities throughout the U.S. and Puerto Rico.

In Berks County, Strickler serves as family and consumer science education educator. She has written a longtime column, "Consuming Thoughts," for Lancaster Farming for many years.

Recognized for 25 years of service was Clyde Myers, extension agent. Receiving an award for 20 years of service was Donna Heffner, office manager and staff assistant.

Dawn Knepp, staff, was recognized for five years of service.

Merit recognition was awarded to Brett Treichler and Emilie Miller.

Officers of the extension were also elected. They include Judy Hospidor-Earnest, president; Gary Rothermel, secretary; Ken Sanner, vice president; and Travis Werley, treasurer.

FARM EQUIPMENT BUYERS TRUST THE NAME MEYER!

posite Buyers were willing to procure calves a little higher to fill their end-of-the week demands Holstein heifers also sold sharply higher in the first really good offering in several weeks Heifer supplies have been fairly low, with several fancy heifers on offer Thursday It was very clear that buyers welcomed the increase as prices once again broke through the 600 00 barrier The supply included 370 head in the state graded sale, with around 90 percent of the graded run going back on feed

	CATTLE	CALVES
THIS WEEK	2567	1640
LAST WEEK	2705	1781
LAST YEAR	3201	1748

CATTLE Compared to last week, slaughter steers sold mixed to kick off the week, although mostly steady However, late in the week is when the ride really began as bids opened Thursday's auction trending 50-1 00 higher, only to close the day with a lower undertone. Many producers thought that with the western feedyards moving their steers at mostly 67 00 this week that it would add some strength to the local market, and it didn't hurt that October live cattle contracts at the CME have been in the 69 00 range However, this is not the way the wheel turned late in the week as many of the buyers that send loads west were not carrying the orders to put any more money on their bids To argue their point there was an increase in Yield Grade 4's, which they really shy away from, and when they pay a few dollars per head for their trucking, etc to get their steers to those Western kill floors, 65 00-68 00 Choice cattle soon turn into much more than that The High Choice and Prime cattle held firm for the week as most of these cattle are sent to Kosher kills and are then sent on to the upscale East coast steakhouses, where as long as the economy stays on dry ground, consumers will continue to pay for the high quality dining experience Holstein steers were in relatively light supply this week, although demand remains good for the hard-fed steers, which were hard to come by as most of the Holsteins this week were sent to the packing house with buyers praying for miracles, or they were put back on feed The fed heifer supply was very mixed, from very fancy, very fat, or very aged, therefore a trend was not established on the light runs Lean slaughter cows sold steady to 1 00 lower to open the week, trending 1 00 higher to close the trading period Breaking and Boning cows sold weak to 2 00 lower to kick off the week, trading fully 1 00 higher at week's end The cow trade still balances on the usual supply and demand, but more importantly is buyer attendance When only a few buyers set out early in the week to tackle a supply made up of hundreds of cows, things get kind of ugly The same holds true late in the week when buyer attendance is improved, prices improve as well. Slaughter bull runs were very light early in the week, with a good run late in the week not tested due to those light early runs Local slaughter bulls remain in very good demand, as most of the supply is made up of some very fancy stock This week's supply included 37 percent steers, 8 percent heifers, 39 percent cows, 6 percent bulls, and 10 percent feeders

CALVES Compared to last week, veal calves sold mostly steady, to instances 5 00 lower early in the week Holstein bulls suitable for special-fed veal barns sold as much as 15 00 lower to kick off the week on light demand. However, bids were greatly improved late in the week as prices trended sharply higher Last week fancy bulls struggled to hit the 100 00 mark, as this weeks supply broke the 120 00 barrier Compared to the prices of several weeks ago, this is a small victory for producers, although a larger victory if prices continue on their uptrend Much of the increase late in the week could be attributed to the usual end of the week rush to fill immediate orders, although last week this rush never came Holstein heifers were not well tested early in the week, although by the time Thursday rolled around heifers were back to bringing over 600 00 for the fancy ones It has been a while since prices have reached this level, with demand definitely picking back up.

USDA Declares Disaster For 54 Counties

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Gov. Mark Schweiker applauded the USDA's decision to grant his request for a disaster declaration for 54 counties.

"These counties have been struck hard by the ongoing drought in Pennsylvania," Schweiker said. "This disaster declaration will provide much needed help for Pennsylvania farmers."

In addition, the 11 surrounding counties may be eligible for assistance as a result of the declaration.

To qualify for federal disaster assistance, farmers must have realized at least a 30 percent loss for a single crop. These farmers are eligible to apply for low-interest loans from USDA Farm Service Agency (FSA). Livestock farmers in the disaster area also are eligible to apply for USDA livestock payments.

"Pennsylvania agriculture suffered an average of 46 percent crop loss statewide — a huge economic hit for our farmers," said Agriculture Secretary Sam Hayes. "With this disaster declaration, our farmers can get much needed financial assistance to help us get to the next cropping season."

In August, FSA conducted a statewide assessment of crop losses, which determined that there was at least 30 percent damage to at least one crop in 54 counties. Based on these results, Schweiker requested that the USDA declare a disaster in September.

Assistance also is available to farmers through the Pennsylvania Crop Insurance Program.

"Millions of dollars will go to participating farmers this year due to appropriations made by the governor and state lawmakers," said Hayes. "In just a few years, the number of crop insurance policies has increased from 6,000 to approximately 15,000 this year. We'll continue this risk management program on behalf of participating farmers."

In the next year, Hayes estimates that the Department of Agriculture will offer more than $200 million in protection over the next year.

Most of Pennsylvania has been under a drought warning or drought emergency since early in 2002. This was caused by lack of adequate rainfall over the previous 12 months. For many producers, this is the second severe drought in four years.

For more information on drought, visit the PA PowerPort at www.state.pa.us, PA Keyword: "drought."

Following are the counties listed under the disaster declaration:

Disaster counties: Adams, Allegheny, Armstrong, Beaver, Bedford, Berks, Blair, Bradford, Bucks, Butler, Cambria, Cameron, Carbon, Centre, Chester, Clearfield, Clinton, Columbia, Cumberland, Dauphin, Elk, Forest, Franklin, Fulton, Huntingdon, Indiana, Juniata, Lackawanna, Lancaster, Lawrence, Lebanon, Lehigh, Luzerne, Lycoming, McKean, Mifflin, Monroe, Montgomery, Montour, Northamption, Perry, Pike, Potter, Schuylkill, Snyder, Somerset, Sullivan, Susquehanna, Union, Venango, Wayne, Wyoming, and York.

Contiguous disaster counties: Clarion, Crawford, Delaware, Fayette, Jefferson, Mercer, Philadelphia, Tioga, Warren, Washington, and Westmoreland.

Start Clean Next Spring with Fall Sprays

If weather delays next spring's burndown applications you could wind up with some real weed-control headaches in your Roundup Ready* soybean fields That's where a well-planned timely fall herbicide application can help

Fall applications provide early burndown of actively growing weeds, plus residual weed control, to help you plant into clean fields next spring – just like spring burndowns do But with a fall application your fields will dry down faster for earlier planting, and insects may be fewer due to less weed vegetation Populations of soybean cyst nematode may also be reduced

Fall applications of Python® WDG herbicide at 0 8 to 1 0 ounce 1 pint of 2 4-D and 1 pint of Glyphomax Plus herbicide per acre control tough weeds like purple deadnettle and henbit plus common chickweed marestail shepherdspurse butterweed field pennycress yellow rocket wild mustards and early flushes of lambsquarters

Make your fall application when soil temperatures have dropped to 50 degrees F and are continuing to fall This will help Python WDG remain stable in the soil until it activates next spring

One more benefit that Python WDG provides is the flexibility to plant corn if market or weather conditions dictate a change Canopy XL herbicide restricts growers to soybeans

When next spring arrives you can use one 32-ounce post application of Glyphomax Plus to clean up any remaining weeds in your Roundup Ready soybeans Or you can tank-mix 0 3 ounces of FirstRate herbicide with reduced rates of Glyphomax Plus if common and giant ragweed cocklebur sunflowers or velvetleaf are a common weed problem in your fields

For more information about using Python WDG and Glyphomax Plus herbicides in a fall-applied program contact your local ag retailer

FALL CROPPING MANAGEMENT PRACTICES

Del Voight
Agronomy Extension Agent, Lebanon

Fall allows the producer many opportunities to impact next year's crops. Liming, fertilizer applications, and fall tillage will set up the right conditions for next year's crop season.

I will discuss the fall decisions related to herbicide applications to manage weeds and crop rotation.

Applications of an herbicide in the fall may mean better crops in future years for a range of reasons, from killing a grass sod to getting ready for next spring's corn planting to eliminating the toughest perennial weeds in the field. Two falls ago, Charlie Bomgardener, a producer near Annville, had many green fields in the fall that contained both perennial and annual weeds after silage harvest. After viewing the weeds, we decided to apply Roundup to eliminate fall weeds.

Not all fields received the application, which was noticeable the following spring. The cleanest fields in the spring were the ones receiving a late-fall herbicide treatment. Not only were the weeds clean, but the usual chickweed and other winter annuals were eliminated. Apparently they had germinated at the time of application in the fall.

This is not a one-time testimonial. As with other universities, Dr. Bill Curran, Penn State weed specialist, has conducted many studies documenting the tremendous impact that fall applications of herbicides have on certain weed species, mostly perennials. In fact, in his research, hemp dogbane was controlled 90 percent with fall applications, compared to 60 percent if the same product was applied in the spring.

In most cases, a producer may suppress many perennials (hemp dogbane) during the growing season using an array of products, but those established plants will be there the next season to be suppressed again. The only way to completely kill the established plant and have no recovery the next year is to fall-apply systemic herbicides such as Roundup, Touch Down, 2,4-D, or Banvel.

Certainly a producer might control seedlings during the growing season, but I am referring to those plants with large root systems that can compete and be more of a concern. What is the best time? Penn State's investigations show that shortly before a frost (early October) is the best time to apply in the fall if the weeds have green leaves in good condition.

Another fall herbicide application that makes sense is to kill orchardgrass and alfalfa stands in the fall. Gerald Hoffer, a producer farming near Hershey, picked up some rented land last season that had some alfalfa. Since Gerald is mostly interested in grain, he decided to let the alfalfa go to first cutting in the spring, harvested the first cutting, and then killed the stand and no-tilled corn into it. Fortunately the alfalfa was thick, and he received high quality and tonnage followed by a decent stand and resulting yield of corn that year.

I can also point to cases where producers not only got a weedy half crop of alfalfa in the spring, but that was followed by a drought-stricken, almost complete loss for a corn crop. Alfalfa produces an enormous amount of nitrogen (commonly 100-120 pounds per acre) released from its nodules on the roots, which enables some of the best corn crops to be grown after, if killed in the fall and planted early in the spring. There is no question this is the best use of the alfalfa stand.

There are ways to make better decisions to either kill the alfalfa in the fall or to let it go to after first cutting. The decision to make is how many plants are there right now. Make, buy, or borrow an alfalfa square (simply a 1 foot square wire or wood outline), throw it randomly into the field, and count plants within the square. If there are less than four plants per foot, kill the stand this fall and plant full-season corn in spring.

If, however, you find a decent stand (more than four plants per foot), then consider leaving the stand for another year. If you have to, because of forage need, plan to harvest first cutting and plan for silage harvest using sorghum for drought-prone areas and corn for others.

Does it make any sense to get a poor quality crop of alfalfa and poor yield of corn? No — assess alfalfa in the fall and manage accordingly.

One final note related to weeds in alfalfa is that growers should be applying residual herbicides now to eliminate chickweed in the field. Products such as Pursuit or Raptor kill both emerged plants and leave a barrier for plants that might emerge later in the winter. A quick look at the past year's Five-Acre Corn Club results shows the relation to high-yielding corn crops after legumes (soybean and alfalfa). In almost all cases, the top producers rotated from a legume.

Fall-applied herbicide rates may be reduced because the plants are more susceptible in the fall while transporting nutrients along with the herbicide into the roots for winter. For example, the labeled rate for fall application to kill alfalfa for the herbicide Roundup is 1 quart per acre. The spring application rate is 2 quarts. If dandelions are present, which many times is the case, use 1 pint of 2,4-D as a tank mix to eliminate this weed.

For control of perennials in fields to rotate to corn next year, Roundup rates can be reduced to 1 pint/acre in most cases and the highest rate needed for fall applied would be 1 quart per acre.

Touchdown is another systemic herbicide similar in activity to Roundup, but is applied at a lower rate. Check the label for specifics.

Insects also seek overwintering sites this time of year. By eliminating vegetation this fall, populations of an array of insects will be eliminated simply by removing these overwintering sites. Where fields have high enough residues to hold the soil in place, the removal of winter annuals such as chickweed and henbit will ensure cutworms, armyworms, and other moths will not migrate to that field.

Keep this in mind with cover crops as well, for this will force them to lay eggs into the cover crop and growers will need to manage these fields by delaying planting at least 14 days after the cover crop is harvested or killed with a herbicide.

By performing some key activities this fall, such as fall-applied herbicides and assessing alfalfa fields and fertility levels, producers may be better prepared to ensure next season's yield and profitability.

NASS Agriculture Counts

By Marc Tosiano
Pa. State Statistician

Editor's Note: This is a monthly column from the Pennsylvania Ag Statistics Service (PASS), a field office of USDA's National Agricultural Statistics Service (NASS) in cooperation with the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture (PDA). The Website is www.usda.gov/nass/.

COUNTDOWN TO CENSUS

The 2002 U.S. Census of Agriculture will be mailed to all growers across the nation in late December or in about two months. You only have to produce $1,000 of agricultural products or keep only a few head of livestock or equine to count as a farm for census purposes.

In Pennsylvania, more than 90,000 forms will be mailed in an effort to account for roughly 60,000 farms. The front page of the census form gives instructions if you receive more than one form for the same operation.

Extension depends on county statistics from the census for research, education, services, and programs for growers of all sizes. The ag census provides much county data that is only available once every five years. So it's important for Pennsylvania to count every farm no matter how small — even small, part-time, and hobby farms.

Remember, "Agriculture Counts," and we are counting on your response for an accurate census. When you get the ag census form, please fill it out and return it right away to avoid additional taxpayer cost of further mailings. Thank you!

Pennsylvania Cash Receipts And Rankings

The 2001 cash receipts to farmers was recently released. We all know that milk is the largest single sector of Pennsylvania agricultural production. Milk accounted for 40 percent of the $4.5 billion in gross agricultural sales across the state. After that, cattle and calves had 9.4 percent of sales, agaricus mushrooms 7.9 percent, greenhouse and nursery 7.4 percent, eggs 6.8 percent, broilers 6.5 percent, hogs 4.0 percent, field corn 3.5 percent, hay 2.8 percent, turkeys 2.2 percent, soybeans 1.4 percent, apples 1.1 percent, and other commodities were each less than one percent of the total gross sales.

Pennsylvania mushrooms rank first in the nation, with 58 percent of the national agaricus mushroom receipts. Compared to other states, Pennsylvania ranks: #3 for egg sales; #4 for milk sales; #5 for apples, peaches, grapes, and strawberries; #6 for oats; and #9 for greenhouse/nursery and turkey sales.

These "Agricultural Counts" show the importance of Pennsylvania agriculture here and across the nation.

2002 Small Grain Crops

Pennsylvania small grain production compared to last year was as follows:

Winter wheat production was up 20 percent at 9.9 million bushels because of increased acreage and improved yields at 54 bushels per acre. Barley production was up 6 percent at 4.4 million bushels because of increased yields at 74 bushels while acreage was unchanged. Oat production was down 6 percent at 7.0 million bushels because of decreased yields of 61 bushels while acreage was unchanged.

Small grain production nationwide was generally low. Winter wheat production was 16 percent below last year and the lowest level since 1970. Barley production was 9 percent below last year and the lowest production since 1937. Oat production was 2 percent above the record low level set in 2001.

2002 Crop Forecasts

The October 1 crop forecasts are in! All crops in the report, except tobacco, show Pennsylvania production to be below last year.

The report includes grain corn, dry hay, soybeans, tobacco, apples, and grapes.

Corn yields as of October 1 are forecast still at 72 bushels in Pennsylvania, down 26 bushels from last year and 55 below the 2000 record high yield of 127 bushels. Nationwide, at 127 bushes, yields are down 11 bushels from last year. U.S. production is forecast at 8.97 billion bushels. If realized, this would be the lowest production since 1995.

Alfalfa hay and other hay dry production in Pennsylvania are forecast at 14 percent and less than 1 percent below last year, respectively. Nationwide, production levels are also below 2001 with 7 percent less alfalfa and 1 percent less other hay.

The surrounding states of New York and Ohio are also expecting 14 percent and 20 percent less alfalfa production, respectively. They are only expecting a 1 percent increase in production from other hay.

Soybean yield is forecast at 27 bushels in Pennsylvania, which is 1 bushel below the Sept. 1 forecast and 8 bushels below last year. While Pennsylvania production would be down 26 percent from last year, production nationwide is expected at a 2.65 billion bushels, 8 percent below last year and the lowest since 1999.

Pennsylvania-type tobacco production is forecast at 7 percent more than last year. Maryland-type tobacco production in Pennsylvania is forecast 18 percent above last year. (There is no forecast for other-type tobaccos grown in Pennsylvania.)

Apple production in Pennsylvania is forecast at 390 million pounds, down 19 percent from last year. Nationally, apple production is expected to be 3 percent below the August 1 forecast and 7 percent below last year.

Grape production in Pennsylvania is forecast at 32 percent below last year at 42,000 tons. The national harvest is expected to be up 2 percent from the Aug. 1 forecast and 11 percent above last year.

The next update to these agriculture counts will be on Nov. 12 for grain corn, soybeans, and tobacco. Use the QuickSTATS icon at www.usda.gov/nass for the latest statistics at the state and county levels.

events of September 11, 2001 changed the habits of many consumers. The tourism industry has lost thousands of jobs and the restaurant trade is reportedly way off.

It is ironic, however, that a company such as Kraft, which is just one of many manufacturers that takes the raw milk product, could report a 73 percent jump in its earnings for the last quarter while the producers wither on the vine.

I am not trying to be critical of the Kraft Company and, in fact, I applaud the Kraft management and other dairy manufacturers for their savvy business sense, they have shareholders they must answer to. It would seem, however, an appropriate time for the leaders of our largest dairy co-ops and the manufacturers of our raw product to come together for a "meeting of the minds."

Every successful business deal brings together a "meeting of the minds," a satisfactory agreement between the buyers and sellers for a product that changes hands. The current dairy climate is not satisfactory for the dairy producer today, and it will not be satisfactory for the manufacturers in the future when plants face raw material shortages because of massive dairy producer closures. It is imperative that our co-op and manufacturing leaders produce a "meeting of the minds" for the good of all.

My greatest fear is that nothing changes in this world without a confrontation or major upheaval. Many wars have been fought over the years, some necessary, some perhaps not, but the common element found with respect to the ones that really mattered was the leadership involved on the winning side — they were determined and resigned to the fact that no one could trample the rights and diminish the lives of others and that equality stood for something. The dairy industry and virtually all of agriculture in this country is yearning for leadership that will bring together a "meeting of the minds."

Dairy and other farm producers in the U.S. don't need handouts — they need equality, represented in their producer checks. Our dairy producers are as innovative, determined, and proud as any in the world, and continually compete against their counterparts across the globe that receive subsidies three to four times that which our producers see. Still, our country becomes a dumping ground for millions of tons of product from the world market.

Our producers are continually warned they must lower their inputs, produce their product cheaper, or face the inevitable. Our producers are continually led to believe there is nothing, nothing, that can be done to correct the current conditions they face. The meaningful wars and battles that were fought and won were never won with that attitude. Our industry yearns for leadership.

The leaders of our government and industry, both handlers and manufacturers alike, know there has never been any unity or continuity amongst our producers. It is time to close the ranks. No matter whether you milk 50 cows or 1,000, it is time to bring unity to our industry. It is time for our leaders to step up to the plate, it is time for our free spirits to compromise, for the betterment of our entire industry and the welfare of all our producers. It is time for our producers to stand on equal ground with the rest of the country and receive their just due compensation for all their hard work, dedication, and a job well done. Settle for nothing less than equality.

Department Launches Initiative

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Agriculture Secretary Sam Hayes launched the 2002-2003 crop insurance education and outreach program at the third Annual Crop Insurance Conference, conducted Oct. 24 at the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture (PDA) building, Harrisburg.

The Annual Crop Insurance Conference gives agricultural leaders such as Cooperative Extension agents, insurance agents, USDA Risk Management Agency officials, and agriculture professionals an opportunity to discuss current crop insurance topics and plan the educational needs of producers to increase participation in crop insurance.

"Pennsylvania farmers are faced with increased market and weather-related risk and need access to a crop insurance program that reflects production aspects unique to Pennsylvania. Crop insurance education is a major initiative of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture," Hayes noted. "Pennsyvania's Crop Insurance Conference, co-sponsored by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, Penn State University, and the Risk Management Agency, provides those individuals that advise farmers on their risk management needs a chance to revise crop insurance educational curriculum and develop promotional tools that will increase crop insurance enrollment and strengthen the agricultural economy in Pennsyvania."

As part of the recent "crop insurance reform movement," the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture seized the opportunity to raise the awareness of the need for crop insurance. Before PDA's involvement, insurance policies in the nation were not inviting for Pennsylvania's diverse agriculture. To help guide the needed changes, Hayes formed a Pennsylvania Crop Insurance Task Force and worked with farmers, agriculture economists, national insurance companies, and the Risk Management Agency to forge a crop insurance program that would be more reflective of mid-Atlantic cropping systems.

To emphasize the importance of risk management, the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, working with cooperative extension and the agribusiness community, conducted more than 70 outreach meetings in 2001 that were attended by approximately 4,000 farmers prior to this spring's planting season. Crop insurance participation among Pennsylvania farmers increased 19 percent from 2001 to 2002. Other outreach and educational programs, such as public service announcements, have also been initiated by PDA. These meetings provide the opportunity for farmers to learn about the various crop insurance policy options that meet their risk management needs.

The PDA and Secretary Hayes received national recognition for initiating the reform movement.

To expand the coverage to more eligible acres and crops, the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture has worked with crop insurance companies and the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation to expand the availability of existing policies and develop more effective policy provisions such as Adjusted Gross Revenue (AGR). Pennsylvania has insured more acres under the Crop Insurance Assistance Program than ever before. In just a few years, crop insurance coverage has increased in Pennsylvania from 6,000 policies to approximately 15,000 policies. The Pennsylvania Crop Insurance Assistance Program covers 10 percent of the gross premium (about 20 percent of net) plus the total amount of related fees. This makes CAT policies and coverage free to the farmer. The Pennsylvania program is in addition to any federal crop insurance assistance that may be available from year to year.

nia who are comfortable with the sentiment being foisted on them that they should be able to operate in a vacuum. They do not feel the need to be protected by state law from the task of caring for the preferences, opinions, and wellbeing of the people, communities, and township leaders in their region. These entities, now described as enemies, have always been agriculture's greatest advocates — some farmers even call these folks "customers." And it can hardly be the case that hoards of people are moving their families into farm country because they hate the farms and want to shut them down.

The language of the original "Right to Farm" Law protected in an effective way all farms, large and small, from unfair local ordinances that discriminated against "normal agricultural operations," but only with the clear provision that any such operation "does not have a direct adverse effect on the public health and safety." In other words, the law supported both the normal operation of farms and the responsibility of township officials to look after the health and safety of the community at large — a balanced approach that avoids addressing discrimination with more discrimination.

In contrast, the language that SB 1413 would attach to this law flat out disallows any municipality to "adopt any ordinance or implement any policy that is contrary to this act and its purposes or any other laws of this commonwealth." Aside from the humorous thought that any law needs to be amended to prohibit violation of itself, the more subtle and serious change here is that township officials would hereby be ordered to stop thinking about the health and safety of the public and instead to adhere only to whatever insights the state has to offer to the local situation. Furthermore, if townships do act in the best interests of their citizens, venturing beyond the dictates of the state, they would likely have the legal bills of their detractors levied against them. Now, that's downright "unneighborly," don't you think?

Why then is there such a push to build this "Berlin Wall" of legislation between ordinary farmers and their neighbors? The answer might be found in the data behind the oft' quoted statement that "agriculture is Pennsylvania's largest industry." An inquiry to the Pennsylvania office of the National Agricultural Statistics Service (NASS) revealed the information that the figures assumed behind this statement, originating from a 1997 study done at Penn State, include production agriculture as only 13 percent of the total. An official at NASS indicated that in fact, depending on definitions used, even this figure might be significantly overstated. What's the rest? A whopping 53 percent is wrapped up in the food processing industry, 29 percent from forestry products (including furniture and paper), and lesser amounts from leather products and the agricultural inputs industry.

Aside from other interesting surprises contained in the published data (for example, soft drink production is a sizable component of "food processing"), the point here is that when anyone comes out in strong support of saving Pennsylvania's number 1 industry, it may have little to do with helping actual farms and most everything to do with protecting a more industrialized segment of the economy — including for instance those folks who recently hosted the largest recall of tainted meat in American history. And then it's no huge leap to understand that the real prizes being sought after and preserved by legislation to "save" agriculture these days, like SB 1413, are the vertically integrated, corporate food systems that strive to bring low-cost raw materials from large-scale confinement livestock operations directly into the hungry food processing sector.

Farmers are people like everyone else, both fallible and capable at times of remarkable understanding and action. They know firsthand the importance of neighborly respect and cooperation as a key to success. As managers in an increasingly complex business environment, they understand the necessity of listening to their customers and producing what the markets demand. And they are apt to fight for the future of their farms, even when cashing-in by developing their land would bring a better financial result — this they do with the welfare of the next generation and all future generations in mind.

But, like any of us, they sometimes pursue their goals and dreams without fully realizing the contrary intentions of their supposed partners. In this case, that means failing to note that further industrialization of agriculture leads, and has already led, to tragedy for family farmers across this country and the unfavorable net result of fewer farms, period.

Everyone, farmers and non-farming consumers alike, should be wary of the subtle but powerful effect that legislation like SB 1413 can have on their communities, their farms, and their neighborly interactions. This legislation, and the movement behind it, will disguise itself to farmers as a measure to help the many, while really intending to bring great benefit to the few in Pennsylvania agriculture, which is why most farmers, like the ones I talk to everyday, should be concerned about this situation. This bill is not a plaything; it's real life, and it means business . . . big business.

built on the site. The rail siding coming off the main line will have capacity for up to 10 rail cars.

Cotner estimated the time to unload grain from a rail car at about 45 minutes. Loading from the overhead bins onto a truck will take a matter of seconds, he said.

The Cotners and other livestock producers from the area are expected to benefit from the reduced transportation costs and bulk purchasing capabilities offered by the facility.

Rockingham County Fair Junior Exhibitors Show Six Breeds

GAY BROWNLEE
Virginia Correspondent

HARRISONBURG, Va. — Joanie Wills summer yearling "Kristina," was named grand champion Jersey at the junior dairy show at the Rockingham County Fair.

Born June 3, 2001, Kristina was also the reserve grand champion of the open show. Brandon Horn, Mt. Solon, had the Jersey open show grand champion.

"Angie," a junior 2-year-old, was reserve grand champion of the junior show for Will, who is 17 and lives in Bridgewater. Will said Kristina was bred on their own farm by a bull.

Jenny, 15 and Charlotte, 13, her sisters, each showed two heifers in the junior show.

The three each placed first in showing and fitting in her respective age division of competition. The siblings are members of the Rockingham County 4-H Dairy Club and all have been showing for the last four years.

Joe and Beverly Will, their parents, with Wills granddad and uncle, conduct a dairy operation at two locations parted by a few miles. Wills dad also maintains two poultry houses and watches dry cows and heifers. Twice daily at the other location, he milks some 60 Holsteins and 30 Jerseys.

As the Virginia State Dairy Princess and part-time waitress, Will said in a few weeks she and "Kristina" will be in Richmond where she expects the show to be very competitive at the Virginia State Fair.

Will said since acquiring her new title in January 2002, she and several dairy maids have visited the state capitol, met the state commissioner of agriculture, attended DHIA meetings in several counties and, during June National Dairy Month, delivered "Got Milk" items to the first baby born in each Rockingham County and Augusta County.

Recently, an event promoting dairy at the Valley Mall in Harrisonburg, generated enough interest to surprise the princess because kids and adults responded very eagerly to the cute calves inside the mall and the cows in the parking area.

"It was popular. We had kids coming from everywhere," Will said.

Some years ago Will "accidentally" scored a soccer goal in physical education class and, since then, has played soccer in school and for a travel team that competes primarily in Virginia. She plays the wing position.

"I like playing for schools better," she says, comparing the two. "It is more competitive and down to earth. I don't know why I play soccer — I just like it."

In the Red and White breed, Frannie Crawford's 3-year-old was named grand champion. Crawford, 14, is from McGaheysville. 'Sunshine" doubled as grand champion of the open show as well.

"Snowflake," Crawford's aged cow was, likewise, reserve grand champion in both the junior and open shows "Every morning I have to wake up and feed calves with Grandma Shirley Smith," Crawford said.

The Stoney Run Farms dairy herd, according to her granddad Fred Smith, finds 95 percent of the 1,000-head dairy are Holsteins, milked three times a day.

"The double-16 milking parlor is hardly big enough anymore," said Fred Smith.

Matt Switzer, 20, Bridgewater, showed the Holstein grand champion with a senior 2-year-old named "Bea." Switzer's sister, Megan, a freshman at Blue Ridge College, had the Holstein reserve grand champion with an aged cow named "Monique."

The grand champion in the open show belonged to John Welsh of Keezletown and the Holstein reserve grand champion was owned by Monta Vista Farm, Harrisonburg.

In 2001, Switzer earned the prestigious American Farmer Degree through the Turner-Ashby FFA. At the National 4-H Dairy Judging event in 1999, Switzer was the 13th high individual and helped his team achieve third place overall.

Switzer is on the first dairy judging team at Virginia Tech, where he is a junior studying dairy science and ag economics. The team has been practicing at venues such as Maryland State Fair at Timonium, Md.

Prior to the national competition in Madison, Wis., the team will compete at venues in Massachusetts and Pennsylvania.

"I'm pretty excited. I never did it before," Switzer said, referring to the collegiate level of competition.

His parents, William and Sandy Switzer, are co-chairpersons of the Rockingham fair dairy barn. Fifteen years have passed since they began and still they love doing it.

"It's a fun competition," said Switzer's mother. 'We get along great in the dairy barn. They all congratulate each other," she said, praising the youths who participate.

Switzer's sister, Mindi, has graduated already from the Eastern Mennonite University.

Some 80-90 Holsteins in the Switzer dairy are milked morning and evening in a double-4 milking parlor where a young woman employee assists the operation.

Rachel Smith, 13, McGaheysville, had the Brown Swiss grand champion with a 3-year-old named "Skye." Smiths parents are Jeff and Norma Smith.

"I felt happy," said Smith, second oldest of four children. Skye's victory was duplicated in the open show.

Also in the open show, Billie Jo Swope of Churchville showed the Brown Swiss reserve grand champion.

Skye was purchased at a sale in Dublin Hills, Md. The first time Smith showed her was last year.

An eighth grader at the Montevideo Middle School, Smith is a member of the Rockingham County 4-H Dairy Club. She owns four Brown Swiss and three Ayrshires, besides a quarter horse, "Bonnie," who has foaled several times.

"I spend more time with her babies than I do with her," said the teen-ager.

Although Smith and Frannie Crawford are required to clean the milking parlor at their grandparents' farm, the girls are getting a break owing to the opening of school. On weekends and holidays, they will be making up for it.

Kelsey Morris, 14, Harrisonburg, had the Ayrshire grand champion with an aged cow named "Hunter." The reserve grand champion was "Heidi," Morris's other dry cow. In the open, show Hunter and Heidi won the respective titles, as well.

A Spotswood High School ninth grader and dairy maid, Morris is a member of the Rockingham County 4-H Dairy Club. She and brother Chad, 12, are the children of Mark and Renee Morris.

Morris assists her mom in milking a mixed herd of some 45 Holsteins and Ayrshires owned by Bob and Pat Shirey, her grandparents. Morris's dad holds an outside job.

The coolest part of showing is the generational aspect started by Granddad Shirey in 1946.

Not only that, but he must really like kids. After all, he's been a school bus driver for 48 years .

Morris's Grandmother Shirey recorded results of the dairy show for more than 35 years and would use her vacation time from the bank to attend the fair. She recently retired from several fair-related responsibilities, including directorship.

Unexpectedly, Morris's plan to compete in showing and fitting was aborted following the open show. It seems the Holstein she intended to use in the competition brought a new calf into the world instead, and attracted all kinds of attention at the fair.

In the open show, Audrey Fuller, Mt. Solon, had the Guernsey breed grand champion and Jason Fuller, Mt. Solon, had the reserve grand champion.

In all, Matt Muckols from East View Farm, Beaver Falls, judged about 140 dairy animals shown by 42 exhibitors.

Joanie Will, 17, Bridgewater, has the grand champion Jersey — "Kristina" — a summer yearling, born June 3, 2001.

LOOKING AT YOUR PUMPKIN CROP

Harvest is always a good time to evaluate the successes and/or failures of your crop production practices. Take a few minutes now to look closely at your pumpkin crop for this season. How did you do?

Obviously the drought had a large effect on the crop, especially if you did not have any way to irrigate. How did your handles look? What about the amount of rot that you saw in the field and after harvest? How about the cropstand in the field — were there many skips? What caused those vines to die?

Let's look at some of the factors affecting pumpkin yields and quality.

In order to have the greatest yields from a field, you need to have the field covered with pumpkin vines. If you had a poor stand, hopefully you took some time to determine the cause. Did you have poor germination? Was it from bad (old) seed or was your planter not set properly? Either of these factors needs to be corrected before planting next season.

Did you loose vines after germination? If so, why? I visited and talked with several growers this season that had very high cucumber beetle pressure in their fields. These beetles, as you remember, spread bacterial wilt. Normally bacterial wilt is not much of a problem in pumpkins, but the high beetle pressure seems to have resulted in more diseased and dead vines in the fields this year. I saw one grower that lost more than 10 percent of his stand. In addition, the beetles lay their eggs at the base of the vines and the larvae feed on the pumpkin roots.

While you will rarely see a vine die because of this feeding, it will still be weakening the vine. If you did not have good beetle control this year, again begin planning for next season.

Remember — Admire treatments only last a few weeks and then you will need to switch to foliar sprays to control the beetles that move into the fields later in the season.

Dr. Brent Loy, the pumpkin breeder at the University of New Hampshire, has noted that semi-vining types of pumpkins are not as drought-tolerant as the older, more vigorous types are. He reports that premature dieback of vines can occur in semi-vining types of pumpkins under conditions of stress, especially if the vines are carrying a heavy fruit load. Our switch to the newer cultivars that are semi-vining such as Magic Lantern probably has made the pumpkin crop more susceptible to the recent summer droughts. Perhaps you should consider having part of your crop in an older or more traditional vining-type cultivar as a bit of "insurance" against a dry summer.

Did you know that most of the growth of face-type pumpkins is completed by 15 to 20 days after pollination and fruit set? This means that the period of flowering and fruit set is the most important time to have adequate moisture and fertility in your pumpkin crop. During this period of rapid fruit growth, even slight amounts of drought stress will reduce the final fruit size.

After the fruit reaches maximum size (in face-type pumpkins), the handle begins to harden. This process occurs from 20 to 35 days after fruit set. During this period of time, the pumpkin flesh is accumulating starch. By 30 days after pollination, the fruit may begin to show orange color and by 40 to 45 days after pollination the pumpkins of many varieties will appear ripe or fully colored.

So what does it mean to have shriveled handles at harvest or shortly after? Poor handles are an indication that the plants were stressed during the period of time when the handles were being developed and once the fruit is colored it cannot "go back" and finish hardening the handle.

So does this mean that you can ignore your pumpkin vines from 40 days after fruit set until harvest? No, because development is not actually complete until 60 to 70 days after pollination. After 40 days (when the fruit can be fully colored) the seeds are still accumulating energy in the form of fats and proteins. This seed-filling process is completed 55 to 60 days after pollination but under some conditions may take up to 70 days. If the vine dies after the fruit has colored but before the seeds are mature, the energy reserves in the flesh are then used to complete the development of the seed. This process will result in poor flesh quality (especially for eating purposes) as well as lighter pumpkins, because some of the stored energy is lost during the moving process. Therefore, healthy vines during the entire pumpkin development cycle are necessary for the best quality fruit and greatest yields per acre from your farm.

How was your disease control this season? One advantage that I can think from a dry season is that there are generally less disease problems. However, if you stopped spraying once your pumpkins were mature but several weeks before harvest, you might have allowed disease to take advantage of the rains in September to infect your fruit.

I recently spoke with Dr. Alan MacNab, the vegetable disease specialist at Penn State, about black rot in pumpkins. He noted that black rot could infect fruit but take up to four weeks to show any symptoms. So the fruit that you sell may look fine but when your buyer puts it on his market stand it may "suddenly" start to show disease symptoms.

There are two options you have in protecting your fruit from disease once it is mature. First, maintain a fungicide program until harvest. You are no longer protecting the leaves from diseases but the fruit still needs protection. Second, harvest the fruit and store it in a cool, dry location until you sell it. This might mean handling the fruit an extra time, but if field conditions favor disease development, it could be worth the extra labor cost.

Another proven method to help reduce diseases in pumpkin fruit is to use a no-till production system. Having a plant residue over the soil will protect the fruit from rain-splashed fungal spores as well as reducing infection by fusarium since the fruit is not in contact with the soil. This can increase yields by lowering the number of fruit lost to rot diseases. In addition, your fruit will be cleaner at harvest and weed control can be easier.

Now is the time to establish your cover crop to use a no-till growing system next season. I encourage you to give this system a try for pumpkin production.

Make some notes now on observations of this season's pumpkin crop so that you can make any necessary changes next season to potentially improve yields and fruit quality. Making a few changes in your production practices has the potential to result in higher income from your pumpkin crop. In addition, a high quality pumpkin will result in satisfied buyers and more return business in the future.

Sheep And Dairy Goat Entries Fill Ring At Blue Valley Farm Show

DEANNA CUNFER
Carbon Co. Correspondent

BANGOR (Northampton Co.) — Clyde Brubaker, Lebanon, an independent contractor for Vigortone minerals, judged the sheep and market goat show recently at the Blue Valley Farm Show. Brubaker and his wife started a purebred Hampshire flock in 1959 and currently breed and raise Hampshire and crossbred sheep as well as raise and sell club lambs.

As his champion showman of the market goat show Brubaker selected Diana Holder, Slatington, described as being very attentive and doing a super job in presenting the animal to the judge from the senior division. Following Holder as reserve champion showman was senior Amber Buttner, Bath.

Champion fitter honors went to Christopher Blackadar, Riegelsville, from the intermediate division with the reserve fitter title going to Ashley Barry, Lehighton.

In reviewing the market goat weight classes Brubaker selected the two entries of Sarah Blackadar, Riegelsville, from the heavyweight class as the grand and reserve champions of the show. In describing the 89-pound grand champion of Blackadar Brubaker said the animal presented a neater package and that he appreciated the size and scale with more conditioning over the ribs than the opponents.

The champion bred and owned market goat banner went to Ashley Barry for her 53-pound winner of the lightweight class. The 67-pound entry of Josh Bauman was presented with the reserve champion bred and owned market goat award by Brubaker.

In the market lamb showmanship competition Brubaker again tapped Diana Holder as champion and followed with Amber Buttner as reserve showman. These individuals first topped the large senior division before moving in contention for the championship.

In describing his choice as champion fitter Brubaker said Sarah Blackadar, winner from the senior division, did the most complete job with both cleanliness and her clip job. Brother Christopher Blackadar was then named the reserve fitter of the market lamb show. They are the children of Dave and Allison Blackadar, Riegelsville.

In stating he found the lamb that was the most ideal lamb of the 33 entries, Brubaker selected lamb #16, the 110-pound winner of the medium lightweight class exhibited by Ashley Barry, 16, daughter of Guy and Priscilla Barry of Lehighton.

Barry's lamb #18, her 100-pound entry from the lightweight class was then awarded the reserve grand champion banner by Brubaker.

The bred and owned grand and reserve champion market lamb banners went to the Blackadar family with son Christopher exhibiting the grand champion and daughter Sarah exhibiting the reserve grand champion.

Barry received the grand champion pair banner while Christopher Blackadar followed in receiving the reserve pair honors.

In the breeding sheep competition Josh Bauman's Suffolk ewe lamb was named the champion Suffolk ewe with Christopher Blackadar's Dorset ewe lambs being named champion and reserve Dorset ewes of the show. These Dorset entries went on to be named the grand champion and reserve grand champion ewes of the show.

Sarah Blackadar's Dorset ram lamb was Brubaker's choice as champion Dorset ram with Christopher's ram lamb from the same class receiving the reserve champion Dorset ram honors.

In the other breeds division, Diana Holder's Texel ewe lamb received the championship of the division.

From left, Recorded Grade owned by Derek Stenlake; Saanan owned by Diana Holder; Nubian exhibited by Diana Holder; LaMancha of Kristine Henn; judge Brent Dietrich, Millersburg; and the Alpine of Amber Buttner. Best senior doe of show honors went to the LaMancha with the reserve best senior doe of show title going to the Alpine.

Earlier that week Brent Dietrich, president of the Maryland Dairy Goat Association (MDGA) judged the dairy goat show. Dietrich, of Millersburg, raises 55 head of Nubian and Saanan goats, owns his own herd marketing business and works with the national dairy goat breed clubs.

Duplicating their success from the market goat and market lamb competition, Diana Holder was Dietrich's choice as the grand champion showman with Amber Buttner following as reserve grand champion showman. Both Holder and Buttner were then named grand champion and reserve champion fitter, respectively.

Holder resides on Lilac Corners Farm, Slatington, where she raises Nubian and Cashmere goats. Buttner, 16, of Bath, is currently the Pennsylvania Dairy Goat Youth Representative and in the 11th grade at Northampton High School.

Buttner then saw her Alpine doe, Merci, from the 3- to 4-year-old class receive the champion Alpine doe award. Eclipse, the five year and older entry of Derek Stenlake followed in being named the reserve champion Alpine doe. Buttner's Merci also received the Alpine best udder award.

In the LaMancha competition Dietrich selected the entry of Kristine Henn, Mary, from the 2- to 3-year-old class as his senior champion and grand champion LaMancha doe. This entry of Henn also received the best udder award of the LaMancha division.

The reserve senior and reserve grand champion LaMancha title went to Razzy ma Tazzy, Buttner's entry from the 3- to 4-year-old class.

Holder's Nubian entry from the 2- to 3-year-old class, Casey, was then the senior champion and grand champion and recipient of the best udder award of the Nubian division. Buttner's Maggie was then awarded the reserve senior and reserve champion title.

Holder then dominated the Saanan division as she not only took the champion and reserve junior spots but also the best udder award, champion and reserve senior and grand champion and reserve grand champion rosettes.

The Recorded Grade senior and reserve champion and grand and reserve champion honors went to the entries of Derek Stenlake from the 3- to 4-year-old class.

Best junior doe of show honors went to the LaMancha, Daylily, owned by Buttner from the 4- to 8-month class.

Dietrich then named the grand champion LaMancha of Henn as his best doe of show. Henn, 16, is in the 10th grade at Bethlehem Catholic High School and the daughter of Sue and Jerry Henn of Northampton where they raise 25 Nubian, LaMancha and Boer goats. This is her eighth year in 4-H, four of them in the dairy goat club.

The reserve best doe of show award went to the Alpine Merci entry of Buttner.

The fair posted the following results of the sheep and dairy goat shows.

Bou-Matic Dairy Sold

MADISON, Wis. — DEC International, Inc., sold assets of Bou-Matic and three related entities to Madison One Holdings LLC, a company owned and controlled by Houston entrepreneur John P. Kotts. The terms of the sale were not disclosed.

"We are very pleased with the acquisition and we're excited about the future under the new ownership. With the financial difficulties of our previous parent company now a thing of the past, we can focus our efforts on what we do best; — namely providing dairy producers with state of the art technology and practical solutions to meet the challenges they face." stated Robert Kmoch, president of Bou-Matic. "Although the last year has been a difficult one, our strengths as a company have shown through — strengths such as our dealer and distributor network, the loyalty and dedication of our employees and suppliers, and the value that our products offer."

"Indeed, Bou-Matic's strengths and market position are what initially attracted me to the company," said John Kotts, who will assume the role of chairman and chief executive officer of Bou-Matic LLC. "This is a solid company with great fundamentals. My job will be to point the company in the right direction and to provide it with the tools and resources that it needs to take full advantage of its potential.

The acquisition will allow Bou-Matic to remain privately owned and true to its heritage as an American owned and operated company.

PPS Is John Bean Dealer

LITITZ (Lancaster Co.) — John Bean Sprayers has announced Progressive Pressure Systems (PPS) of Lititz as a new dealer for the distribution of the John Bean agricultural lawn, landscape, and tree care sprayers and accessories (pumps, hose reels, spray guns, hose, etc.).

Progressive Pressure Systems endeavors to stock the necessary parts required to keep equipment serviced during the busy season. Their knowledgeable service technicians can take care of your service needs in the field or in their shop located at 1248 East Newport Road, Lititz.

McCormick USA Selects Binkley And Hurst Bros. Inc.

PELLA, Iowa — New red tractors bearing the familiar McCormick nameplate are showing up at Binkley and Hurst Bros. Inc. in Lititz.

The farm equipment dealership is among a select network of dealers chosen by McCormick International USA, Inc. to sell and service its recently reborn tractor line.

The dealership, which has been in operation for 50 years, also represents Gehl, Sunflower, Kinze, and Case lines among other brands. Leonard Hurst is the general manager of Binkley and Hurst, which is located north of Lititz on Rothsville Station Road.

Joe Michaels, general manager of McCormick USA, said the dealership was selected because of its strong commitment to service and parts support, and its good reputation among customers. He said that McCormick is taking a deliberate approach to selecting dealers all over the country.

"We're not signing up just anyone who wants to carry McCormick. We want to find the right kind of dealer partners. We know it's important for the customer to have reliable personal contact and support from the dealer, especially with a new product," said Michaels. "Our dealers definitely have a strong enthusiasm for McCormick that will translate into success for everyone involved. Binkley and Hurst fits that profile, and we're looking forward to having them as part of our team."

Don Hoover, sales manager for Binkley and Hurst, said some customers are expressing discontent at the new platform for Case tractors. "Our past experience with the McCormick-styled Maxxum was very favorable. Not all customers are happy that Case's new models will not be the same as their familiar Maxxum. We anticipate a favorable reaction to McCormick's tractors," said Hoover.

McCormick International now owns and operates the Doncaster, England, plant where Case IH tractors had previously been manufactured.

The McCormick line features seven tractor series ranging from 38 hp to 175 hp, and expects to expand the horsepower range to 250 hp by the end of 2003.

Recent consolidation in the farm equipment industry has pinched many dealers, said McCormick's Michaels. "Yet since we announced McCormick's return in December 2001, we've seen tremendous interest in this tractor line from both dealers and producers. We're pleased with the many topnotch dealers who have expressed interest in joining McCormick's team."

'Attention Alfalfa' Available In Spring 2003

TANGENT, Ore. — Ampac Seed Company has announced the release of Attention Alfalfa with StandFast™ technology for spring of 2003.

Attention is a unique variety that exhibits improved standability and quicker recovery after harvest. Attention works best for the aggressive producer who wants to harvest as much alfalfa per year as possible. Attention can be harvested as often as every 23-25 days. Attention is a very winterhardy variety that has impressive yields, high forage quality, and a solid disease package.

Because Attention exhibits substantially better standability than conventional varieties, producers will have less harvest loss because of wind or rain. The producer will also have less forage quality loss. Producers will also be able to harvest fields sooner because the alfalfa will be standing.

Attention also has very good forage quality. In forage quality tests run in Wisconsin, Attention was nearly three percent more digestible than the check variety. Attention also shows improved CP, ADF, NDF, and RFV in forage quality tests. Attention's better standability and very good forage quality should give a producer more "harvestable quality" than other varieties on the market.

Starting in the third cutting of the planting year or in the first harvest of spring for late-summer seedings Attention will also exhibit faster recovery after harvest. This will provide additional forage production and help reduce weed pressure as Attention will shade the ground quicker. Another benefit is that Attention will be ready to harvest, and have more quality forage to harvest, quicker than conventional varieties.

New Titan Residue Manager Simplifies Adjustments

COLCHESTER, Ill. — "The unique design and rugged construction of the new Titan Residue Manager delivers everything customers have been asking for — especially quick and easy in-field adjustments," says Lonnie Lucas of the product development department at Yetter Manufacturing Company.

The Titan fits most popular planters, and the way it mounts on the side bar adds support and strength to the planter row unit while freeing up attachment space on the face of the planter row unit. Lucas notes that, unlike some other brands, the Titan does not limit the row unit's range of vertical travel.

Made of high-yielding steel, the heavy duty 2.5-inch residue manager arms hold the heat-treated residue manager wheels firmly in place for moving the toughest residue.

Lucas says that the Titan delivers unprecedented ease of depth adjustment. "With the field-proven QuikAdjust™, depth adjustments are made from the side of the planter unit. There is no need to crawl under the planter and, with the spring-loaded handle, no need for tools or pins. This slashes the adjustment time and results in more acres planted per day." The new optional cast aluminum floater wheels further ensure the residue manager wheels maintain a consistent depth.

The Titan can be set to float over the soil surface or, in tougher residue conditions, can be locked down for positive wheel traction.

Seedway Introduces Five New Roundup Ready Corn Hybrids

HALL, N.Y. — Seedway has added five new Roundup Ready corn hybrids to its seed corn lineup for the 2002-2003 season.

Seedway E525L-RR, 105 days, with a "leafy" gene provides more leaves above the ear, and stacked with Roundup Ready, offer solid overall agronomic package. Seedway E709RR, 113 days, provides exceptional dual purpose performance with leading yield potential.

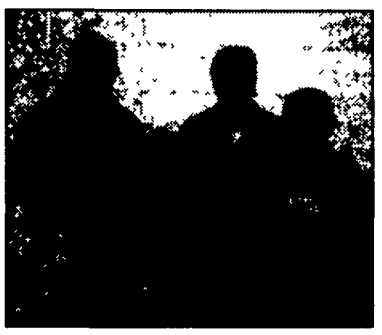
Chester County Holstein Club Reports Good Year

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

ATGLEN (Chester Co.) — In spite of low milk prices and challenging weather conditions for dairy farmers, the Chester County Holstein Club had an upbeat year, according to officers at the club's annual banquet Tuesday evening.



Among those receiving awards at the Chester County Holstein banquet are, from left, Glenn Ranck, Jesse Miller, Calvin Stoltzfus of Honey-Brite Holsteins, and Robert Hershey.

Members and their families filled the West Fallowfield Christian School gym for fellowship, award presentations, a thought-provoking slide show, and progress reports.

"It's been a good year, with a lot of activities and enthusiasm for the club," said Ken Umble, president.

One highlight of the year was the club's annual carnival, which raised about $3,000, Umble said. A total of 94 three-gallon tubs of ice cream were dispensed throughout the day, according to organizers. The club also conducts an annual cheese sale for raising funds.

Marilyn Hershey reported on activities of the recently formed Junior Holstein Club for Chester County. This year, the club conducted two fundraisers, taking in a total of about $1,000.

A major focus of the Junior Club in coming months will be preparation for quiz bowl competition at the Pennsylvania Holstein Convention in February, Hershey said.

Ken Raney, state executive director, noted the Chester County youth are joining a thriving organization of more than 2,000 members statewide.

"Our Junior Association is one of the strongest in the country," he said.

Raney reported that the Pennsylvania Holstein Association as a whole showed a "slight profit" for the fiscal year that ended Sept. 30.

"From where we were about five years ago, that is an accomplishment," he said. A strong Holstein sales program under the direction of David Lentz has contributed to this success, Raney said.

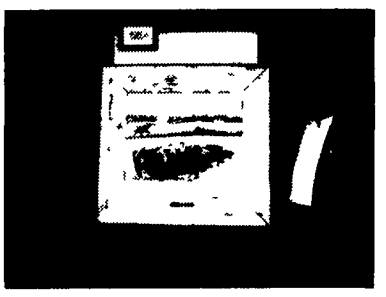
Youth awards at the banquet went to Jesse Miller for his first-year Holstein 4-H project and outstanding recordbook; Christy Guest, outstanding recordbook overall; Ben Brown, first lactation protein production; and Robert Hershey, mature cow protein production.

Adult winners were Nolan King for first lactation and mature cow protein production; Glenn and Harold Ranck, over 200,000-pound lifetime milk production; and the Stoltzfus family of Honey-Brite Holsteins, high breed age average (BAA).

The club honored the late Jefferson Yoder of Rocky Side Holsteins by presenting an original oil painting of the family farm and cows to his wife Reba and daughter Carol Yoder.

Yoder, who recently passed away, has been inducted into the Pennsylvania Holstein Hall of Fame for his accomplishments as a Holstein breeder.

For the evening's entertainment, a slide show on Romania by Alvin Stoltzfus served as a vivid reminder to guests of the blessings they enjoy in contrast to farmers in some other parts of the world.



Carol, left, and Reba Yoder received this painting of Rocky Side Holsteins as a memorial to their father and husband, Jefferson Yoder.

Stoltzfus, who grew up on a local dairy farm, shared his pictures and stories from five years that he and his family spent in Romania during the 1990s with Christian Aid Ministries, a humanitarian aid organization based in Ohio.

A communist country for 45 years until revolution in the early 1990s, Romania and its people have been struggling toward self-sufficiency. Stoltzfus's work there included distributing seeds in various towns, teaching animal husbandry and farming practices, and helping to build a modern dairy at an orphanage.

Holsteins were flown in by plane to establish the herd at the orphanage. Children, many of them the orphans of alcoholic parents, help with the chores on the dairy.

Most of the fieldwork in Romania is done by hand or with horses.

Alongside his involvement in agriculture, Stoltzfus also shared his faith with the people. One of the ways he developed rapport with Romanians was by introducing himself as a dairy farmer and by showing slides of Amish farms from Pennsylvania.

"When I asked (a group) how many had cows, every hand went up," he said.

AgrAbility Project Presented At Council Of Farm Organizations Meeting

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Representatives of agriculture organizations, agricultural businesses, and legislative representatives who make up the Pennsylvania State Council of Farm Organizations gathered at the state capitol recently.

There are 69 members of the council, ranging from agribusinesses to milk, mushroom, pork, beef, grazing, and forestry industries.

At the meeting, Sam Hayes, agriculture secretary, gave an update on Farm Show and Livestock Evaluation Center construction.

Also, representatives of the Farm Bureau, Farmers Union, Grange, and other commodity groups gave legislative updates on issues of interest to agriculture such as property taxes, water legislation, small business loans for producers, and a resolution to reinvigorate agriculture in education.

Members also discussed a resolution to encourage the state legislature to enact legislation to discourage local municipalities from enacting policies and ordnances that are more restrictive to agriculture than state law.

Crystal Smithmyer, National AgrAbility Project, presented a short video and discussed the purpose of the organization, which was established by Congress as part of the 1990 Farm Bill.

The AgrAbility project works with private, nonprofit organizations and county extension agents to direct education and assistance to producers who have been disabled. Farmers or farm family members who may be suffering from a back or head injury, heart condition, visual impairment, or back pain may be eligible for help. Producers suffering from arthritis, cancer, or knee surgery may also be eligible.

The aid begins with an on-farm assessment by a case manager, who may recommend modified farm equipment or home adaptations. The case manager will help to connect the family with financial support.

Services also include identifying farmers with disabilities and referring them to available resources, helping to adapt and use farm equipment and tools, or modifying equipment or buildings.

At least 20 percent of those involved in agriculture today are eligible for help, Smithmyer said.

AgrAbility representatives also teach extension educators and other professionals how to assist farmers with disabilities, and develop and coordinate peer support networks for producers.

Through the project, rural professionals also work to lower the risk of potential injury to help farmers continue their careers in agriculture, said Smithmyer.

Many AgrAbility employees have a strong agriculture background, said Smithmyer.

The project can help to provide adaptive hand tools, wheelchairs, or utility vehicles for outdoor mobility, in addition to modified steps or lifts to provide access to equipment.

Also, modified hand or foot controls, along with modified gardening tools or one-handed hammers, can help farm families.

Pennsylvania's AgrAbility Project is a partnership between Penn State and Easter Seals of Central Pennsylvania.

The Cooperative State Research, Education and Extension Service (CSREES), an agency of the USDA, administers the AgrAbility Project.

In Pennsylvania call (814) 674-6277 for more information.

Crystal Smithmyer, National AgrAbility Project, presented information about the project at the meeting.

Agents Named

SAVANNAH, Ga. — Two Pennsylvania Cooperative Extension agents have been honored by the National Association of County Agricultural Agents with the Achievement Award.

Michael Harteis, Cambria County extension agent for agriculture, and Mary Concklin, Montgomery County extension agent for horticulture, were honored at the NACAA Annual Meeting and Professional Improvement Conference conducted recently in Savannah, Ga.

The AA is presented to the top one percent of agents in each state who have less than 10 years of service in Extension. The selection is made by the agents' peers in each state. This year 60 agents won the award at the national level.

Harteis serves as a four-county farm management agent based in Cambria County.

Concklin is responsible for commercial and consumer horticulture, vegetable, fruit, and Master Gardener programs in her county.

Service Awards

Two Pennsylvania Cooperative Extension agents have been honored by the National Association of County Agricultural Agents with the Distinguished Service Award.

Gary Sheppard, Westmoreland County extension director, and Thomas Murphy, Lycoming County extension agent for agronomy, were honored at the NACAA Annual Meeting and Professional Improvement Conference in Savannah, Ga.

The DSA is presented to the top two percent of agents in each state who have more than 10 years of service in extension. The selection is made by the agents' peers in each state. This year, 83 agents won the award at the national level.

Sheppard serves as the county director in Westmoreland County.

Murphy is responsible for conducting educational programs in agronomic production, pest management/IPM, and the direct marketing of agricultural products and commodities.

Dairy Alliance Offers Calendar

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Penn State's Dairy Alliance has created a web-based calendar of dairy information. The calendar can be accessed at www.dairyalliance.org.

The purpose of the calendar is to improve communication among people providing dairy educational workshops, seminars, training sessions and other events, and to improve producer and agribusiness access to dairy related information.

The calendar is meant to give dairy producers a single point of contact where they can get information about educational events in their local area and across the state.

The calendar is one component of the Dairy Alliance web site. Dairy Alliance was established in 2000 to enhancing the economic development of Pennsylvania's dairy industry through targeted education efforts. Educational areas of focus are information management, human resource management, business management, and nutrient management.

Access to the dairy calendar of events is available to all persons at www.dairyalliance.org. If you would like to have an educational event added to the Dairy Alliance calendar of dairy related events, contact Tammy Perkins, program manager. She can be reached via email at tap10@psu.edu.

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Hues of orange, rust, red, and yellow color the county's countryside. Recent rains resulted in bursts of verdant green grass and meadows, which provide a backdrop for displays of fall's bounty.

Numerous roadside produce stands capitalize on fall's abundance with eye-catching displays of pumpkins, squashes, chrysanthemums, and other seasonal produce.

According to the Pennyslvania Vegetable Growers, pumpkins and their cousins, winter squash, are one of the state's major vegetable crops. The organization reports that Pennsylvania growers produce more than 4,500 acres of pumpkins plus about 500 acres of squash, making the state the fourth largest pumpkin producer in the nation.

As the Halloween and Thanksgiving seasons near, farmers are bringing wagon and truck loads of pumpkins and squash to the wholesale produce auctions, retail farm markets, and garden centers for sale.

Pumpkins come in all shapes and sizes. The most common is the jack-o'-lantern type that generally range from 10 to 30 pounds. Small pumpkins, usually about the size of a cantaloupe, are popular for indoor decorations as well as eating. Mini-pumpkins, such as the variety "Jack-be-Little," are a relatively recent addition to the pumpkin industry. They are about the size of a large tomato and also are extremely attractive for indoor fall decoration.

Giant pumpkins, which are actually squash varieties, weighing from 50 to 200 pounds and larger are also available for special eye-catching displays.

Choosing a pumpkin is mostly a matter of taste as to the shape and size. In general, pumpkins should have a rich orange color indicating full maturity although the shade varies between varieties.

For long-term fall displays, it is important to choose a pumpkin which is free of any unhealed skin punctures or soft areas. The stem should be firm also. While pumpkins can withstand frosts in outdoor displays, they will last longer if they are protected from the frost.

For jack-o'-lanterns, it is not as important to find a pumpkin that has no skin punctures since carving the pumpkin subjects the flesh to decay-causing organisms more than small punctures.

Many farm markets offer pumpkins that have colorful faces painted on the pumpkin. These will usually keep longer than a carved jack-o'-lantern.

While large jack-o'-lantern-type pumpkins can be cooked for pies or other recipes, their flesh is stringy and the eating quality is poor compared to the smaller pie-type pumpkins, often called sugar pumpkins because of their sweetness.

Pumpkins are close relatives to winter squash and most commercially prepared "pumpkin" is actually winter squash.

Neck pumpkins (which are really squash), butternut and Hubbard squashes all make tasty "pumpkin" dishes, such as pumpkin pie or pumpkin bread.

Pumpkin or squash can be cooked a number of different ways. You need not split the fruit and remove the seeds before cooking. Instead, scrub the exterior of the pumpkin or squash. Pierce in several places, and place in the oven or microwave and baked in a 350 degree oven or on high in the microwave until soft.

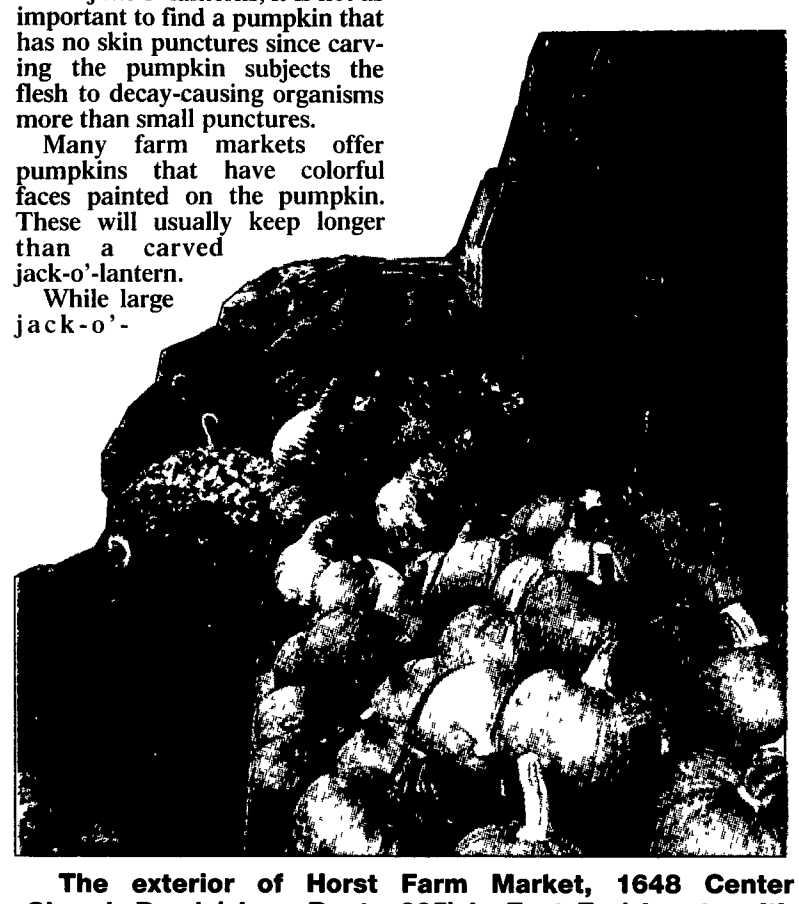
Then split the pumpkin or squash. Remove the seeds and attached strings. The flesh can be scooped out, pureed in the blender, or prepared in other recipes.

For the smaller squash varieties, the fruit can be cut in half. The halves should be placed cut-side up in a shallow pan with a small amount of water or simply on a baking sheet, covered with foil and baked in a hot oven until the flesh is tender. The halves can also be partially covered and cooked in a microwave oven until tender. The cooked flesh can then be scooped out and mashed for use in recipes.

Each year, more and more varieties of squash appear at roadside markets. Some, such as the warty, green-hued Hubbard squash are most often used for fall displays, but don't overlook the unusual tasty flavor of the Hubbard and other varieties.

Spaghetti squash, when cooked and cut open, can be forked out and has the appearance of stringy spaghetti. This delightful squash can actually be used in place of pasta for the nutritional-minded cook.

Take advantage of fall's abundance, and frequent the many roadside markets in your area. Buy many varieties of pumpkin and squash to arrange artful displays inside and outside your home and to cook for mealtime variety.



The exterior of Horst Farm Market, 1648 Center Church Road (along Route 625) in East Earl bursts with color. Inside are homebaked pumpkin, grape, and shoo-fly pies, cakes, cookies, and much more prepared by using fall's abundance.

Plant Bulbs This Fall, Be Rewarded With Springtime Blooms

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Spend an autumn afternoon planting bulbs, a horticulture specialist in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences says, and it will pay off with bright blooms early next year.

For a steady procession of blooms from late January to late July, here are planting suggestions:

• January — Galanthus, or snow drops, bloom the earliest.

• February — Species of crocuses start blooming in late January or early February. Large-flowered Dutch crocuses bloom in February and March. Also blooming at this time are winter aconite, which resemble low-growing buttercups; chionodoxa, which have pink, white or blue star-shaped flowers; and squill, which have deep-blue flowers.

• March-April — Anemone blanda have purple, pink or white flowers that look like asters. Also blooming at this time are grape hyacinths, with grape-like clusters of purple or white flowers, and iris reticulata, which look like other irises but grow only five inches tall. Familiar flowers also bloom during March and April, such as hyacinths; double-early, Kaufmanniana and Fosteriana tulips; and miniature and trumpet daffodils.

• April-May — Darwin hybrid tulips bloom in April and May, along with Triumph, Gregii, single-late, double-late, lily-flowered, Rembrandt and parrot tulips. They come in an array of heights, colors and markings. Interesting smaller bulbs, such as checkered lilies and Spanish bluebells, also bloom in late spring.

• June — For flowers in June, plant Dutch irises and alliums, a colorful and sweeter-scented relative of the onion. Alliums vary greatly in size and color — from four-inch stems with clusters of yellow flowers, to the giant allium, which can reach three feet tall and is topped with a sphere of purple flowers five inches in diameter.

Plant German irises in the fall which grow from rhizomes planted about three inches deep, and they extend the blooming season to the end of July.

Flowering bulbs can be planted in formal or informal beds, rock gardens and in established ground covers. Most prefer partial shade, so avoid planting them where they will receive direct midday sun. Heated basement walls can damage bulbs, so plant them at least five feet away from foundations.

You can fit a lot of bulbs in one space by planting large bulbs, covering them with two inches of soil and planting small bulbs on top of them. You also can plant shallow-rooted annuals on top of bulbs.

Bulbs need good drainage and a high amount of organic matter, so if your soil is mostly sand or clay, mix in peat moss or compost until organic matter is about 25 percent of volume. When planting tulips, daffodils and other large bulbs, dig out the entire bed to a depth of about eight inches. Arrange the bulbs six inches apart with the pointed ends up. Smaller bulbs such as crocuses and grape hyacinths can be planted three inches apart and five inches deep.

Before covering the bulbs, add one rounded tablespoon per square foot of either a sulfur-coated, slow-release fertilizer, or one handful per square foot of bone meal plus 1 tablespoon per square foot of 8-8-8 or 10-10-10 fertilizer.

You then can replace half the soil and water the area thoroughly, add the remaining soil, and water again. A three-inch layer of wood chips, peat moss or bark will retain moisture and keep mud from splashing on the flowers next spring.

Squirrels and chipmunks dig up bulbs, especially crocuses. If you anticipate a problem, spread fine-mesh chicken wire over the soil and then apply mulch.

When shoots start breaking through the soil in the spring, sprinkle a second application of fertilizer around them. As flowers fade, cut them off so they don't go to seed and rob nourishment from the bulbs.

The foliage gathers nutrients for the next season's growth, so allow it to completely die before removing it.

Delaware Valley College Hosts Floral Open House

DOYLESTOWN (Bucks Co.) — More than 130 new varieties of poinsettias will be displayed when Delaware Valley College hosts its Poinsettia and Pansy Open House on Saturday, Nov. 9, from 9 a.m. to noon in its Arthur Poley Greenhouse Complex. Admission is free and the public is invited.

Sponsored by the Henry Schmieder Arboretum and Penn State Cooperative Extension, poinsettias of new and unusual color, shape, size and growth habits will be presented for public viewing. Leading propagators from around the world, including Fischer, Dummen, and SelectaKlemme from Germany, California's Paul Ecke Ranch, and Pennsylvania's own Oglevee LTD, have made such extraordinary poinsettia specimens available for display.

A large pansy exhibition will also be on display at this year's event, which is the largest in the Mid-Atlantic region, with more than 160 varieties for viewing. The trial will be conducted over the course of the winter in order to evaluate the season's effect on the plant, and again in the spring to examine the flowering of the plant. Seed companies from Japan, Europe and the United States have produced the pansy seeds and have made possible such an extravagant event.

Experts will be on hand to answer any of the guest's questions.

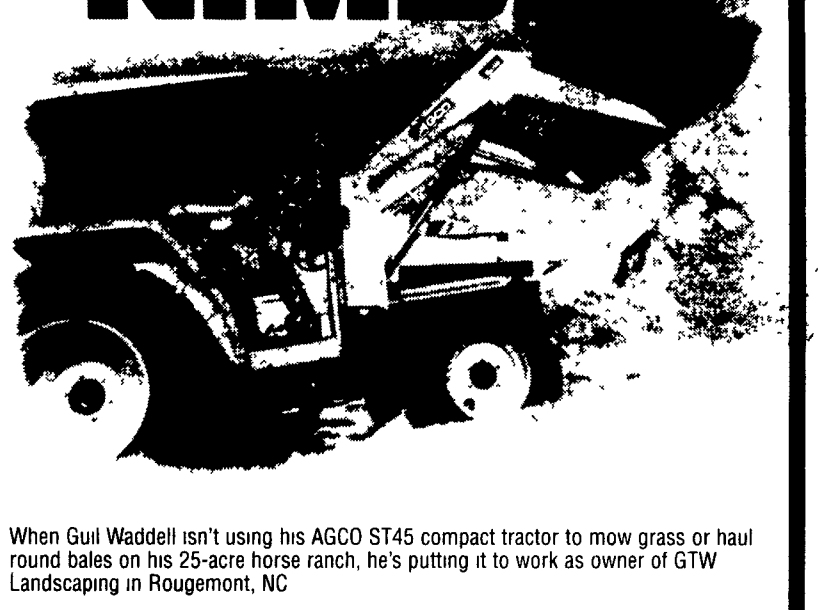
TOUGH & NIMBLE



When Gull Waddell isn't using his AGCO ST45 compact tractor to mow grass or haul round bales on his 25-acre horse ranch, he's putting it to work as owner of GTW Landscaping in Rougemont, NC

"With the price of gas the way it is, I don't want to be towing a 5,000- to 7,000-pound tractor around on a trailer," he says. "That's one reason I like the AGCO compact so well. It has enough power and weight to handle heavy 3-point hitch implements; yet it's light enough to haul around on the job."

With an engine horsepower rating of 44 1 and shipping weight of more than 3,700 pounds, the ST45 is the heavyweight powerhouse of compact tractors To learn more about the productivity, reliability and operator comfort that only an AGCO ST series tractors can provide, stop by and see us today

On Being a Farm Wife
(and other hazards)

Joyce Bupp

Gear up the ghouls, ghosts, and goblins.

Knife the pumpkin. Ream out its guts. Saw out eyes, mouth, nose, and other pertinent features. Poke in a device to give an inner-glow to its smile — or scowl. Weave into your decor the artificial cobwebs (or, maybe like us, you have originals), string up the spiders, wrangle that pointy witch hat out of its storage place in the back of the closet.

In other words, spiff up the spooks!

In case you haven't noticed the delightful outside decorations, sales running everywhere on candy treats, and little kids debating endlessly about what they will "be" this week, Halloween night is almost upon us. According to marketers — who reportedly know all this stuff — Halloween is second only to Christmas in festivities (read spending).

Why we work so hard to scare ourselves silly, when all we have to do is turn on the news or open a paper, is beyond me. But probably it's because at Halloween we all can be kids again, dressing up, pretending to be something we aren't, and — most of all — chowing down fistfuls of forbidden sweets.

Most of us who farm don't nave to leave home to be scared. Persistenting drought, skimpy water supplies, climbing expenses, feed shortages, bugs, weeds, disease threats, low commodity prices, bureaucrats, etc., do just fine to keep most farmers looking over their shoulders for the next boogey man.

Beyond the obvious farm-economics monster under farmers' beds, there are a whole raft of everyday goofy, gory, and grimy things around the farm that just scare the heck out of me on a daily basis.

A series of manure droppings disappearing back into the alleyway of the weaned heifer pens gives me shivers. There may be one or there may be six escapees piled away in there, just trashing the place and leaving a monster mess behind. Guess who gets to dress in her clean-up costume, complete with shovel and pitchfork accessories?

Things that go bump in the night are particularly alarming. Like the sound of cow hoofs clattering past the house on the road and headed toward the hill. Or for the midnight bawling of a cow in agony with a difficult calving.

Any time the milking system shuts down when it's supposed to be running is scary. Double that at hours long before, and long after, normal open-for-business schedules of repair dealers. Milking system glitches on holiday weekends are just plain ghastly.

The smell of smoke — anytime — stands my hair on end.

Puddles of water at places where they shouldn't be, like the basement or barn office floors, give me the frights. Scaling the face of a mow full of straw, and watching the front of the top layer begin toppling toward your head, activates the alarm adrenaline better than any spook I've ever seen.

Red blood may be amusing when its fake, facial makeup, but is terrifying when spotted on a family member or one of the great guys on our farm crew.

Lots of farm incidents are classic Halloween-type thrillers because they stir dreadful imaginations. Like, heifers heading at a run for the neighbors. A loud boom from the machine shed (blown tire? blown battery?) Black smoke pouring out of a tractor exhaust (blown something costly).

How about mice moving back in the house to trick-or-treat all winter. Or, having the dog suddenly go into a barking frenzy during your after-dark walk and not knowing if she scented a groundhog, a fox, a cat — or maybe a skunk.

The only time I've ever turned and run in fear an after-dark walk was on a windy, moonlight Halloween night, when a small, dark shadow dashed across the road just ahead of me. Fear of a trick-or-treating skunk spurred me to a personal best in the 50-yard dash.

So you wanna' be scared this Halloween? Just come farm with us for a little while. Dress up in your best farmer costume. Accessorize with a shovel, a pitchfork and a spacious wheelbarrow. And don't forget a pair of sturdy, rubber boots.

We'll treat you to all kind of tricks.

Big Creek Grange Members Receive Rhone Scholarships

Justin Cunfer and Joshua Kemmerer, members of Big Creek Grange, were recent recipients of the Rhone Scholarship from the Pennsylvania State Grange. Cunfer, a freshman at Penn State University Park majoring in animal science was unable to attend the presentation. Accepting for his son, from left is Dennis Cunfer, with Pennsylvania State Grange Deputy Richard Seidof who presented the awards; and Joshua Kemmerer. Kemmerer is a freshman at Penn State Lehigh Valley majoring in agricultural engineering.

DEANNA CUNFER
Carbon Co. Correspondent

LEHIGHTON (Carbon Co.) — At a recent meeting of the Big Creek Grange, State Grange Deputy Richard Seidof presented two members with Leonard Rhone scholarships.

These awards were made possible by funds established in memory of Leonard Rhone, the third Master of the Pennsylvania State Grange and are available only to Penn State students majoring in agriculture or human development.

Present to receive his award was Joshua Kemmerer, son of Violet and the late LeRoy Kemmerer of Franklin Township. Kemmerer, 18, is a freshman at Penn State Lehigh Valley majoring in agricultural engineering. A recent graduate of Lehighton Area High School he is also vice president of the Carbon County 4-H Livestock Club where he has completed the dairy and market goat, dairy beef, market steer, and poultry projects.

The second Rhone scholarship was awarded to Justin Cunfer, a freshman at Penn State University Park majoring in animal science. Cunfer, 18, is the son of Dennis and Deanna Cunfer of East Penn Township and is also active in the Carbon County 4-H Livestock Club where he holds the office of president and has completed the market swine, market steer and breeding beef projects. Unable to attend the meeting his award was accepted by his father.

Cunfer was also a recipient of one of the 10 no-interest loans from the Pennsylvania State Grange made possible by a fund established by Ellis Santee, a country doctor and Grange member from Shickshinny.

The Big Creek Grange #1559 was organized in Feb. 1913 with 37 original members. Today the membership totals 55. The building, pavilion and grounds are rented out throughout the year for parties, reunions, and weddings. The Grange provides facilities for 4-H, Boy Scout and Girl Scout meetings as well.

Besides operating the refreshment stand at household and farm sales, the Big Creek Grange is probably best known for their homemade bean soup sales and huge flea markets each spring and fall. At times there has been as many as 140 vendors at the flea market. Not only do people attend in search of bargains but they also make a point of buying the Grange's famous bean soup and chicken and beef barbecues. This fall the Grange made and sold 65 gallons of their soup in addition to the other items available in their refreshment stand.

Through the years the Grange has been able to maintain and improve their building; purchase property and new furnishings and fulfill their statement made at their 75th anniversary celebration in April of 1988: "Big Creek Grange members will keep on working to make a better community and with the help of God, we feel we can look forward to greater achievements in the future."

Consuming Thoughts

Sweet Spanish onions, on the market from September through March, have long been recognized for their mild flavor and subtle sweetness. Moreover, they still are the largest variety of onion grown, reaching diameters up to 5 inches.

The sweet Spanish onions can be identified by their round, globular shape and thin, parchment-like skin that crackles to the touch. Their familiar nickname, the "Gentle Giant," has made it easier to remember the unique features of these onions.

Thirty percent of all of the onions on the market during the fall and winter are grown in and shipped from southwestern Idaho and eastern Oregon. There, ideal growing conditions prevail and informed growers take pride in producing a quality product.

Check Out This Week's Featured Recipe On Our Website!

www.lancasterfarming.com

Consumers will be pleased to know that all onions are USDA inspected. Sweet Spanish onions are marvelous "keepers." Like all varieties of onions they should be stored at home in a cool, dry, well ventilated place. A loosely woven bag, basket or crate is a good receptacle. Once cut, place the onions in a plastic bag or tightly covered container and keep them refrigerated.

Nutrition-wise Sweet Spanish onions provide important benefits, including vitamin C and B-vitamins and several minerals. And for weight watchers, they're a joy! One hundred gams contain only 38 calories.

Sweet Spanish onions are a perfect match for the convenience of modern-day kitchens and energy saving methods of cooking.

Be it the microwave oven, the slow cooker or the pressure cooker, these plump onions can be turned into taste-appealing dishes quickly and efficiently. Handy appliances such as a food processor, blender and deep fryer also make cooking with Sweet Spanish onions a simple task. Even the freezer brings the onions up-to-date since they freeze beautifully for all year use.

Here are the most popular methods. Frozen Chopped Onions: Peel and chop sweet Spanish onions and place them in plastic bags or freezer containers. When ready to use, simply scoop out as many as you need with a fork and return reminder to the freezer.

Frozen Sliced Onions: Remove bronze skins from sweet Spanish onions and slice in desired thickness. Place in single layer on baking sheet and quick-freeze. Remove from freezer and pack in plastic bags or freezer containers. Return to freezer.

To use frozen onion slices, saute them in oil or butter and season to taste. Or, drizzle oil or melted butter over the slices, sprinkle with Parmesan cheese or your favorite herb, and broil or bake until tender.

Peppers, Spanish Sweet Onion Saute

1 large Spanish sweet onion, peeled, cut top to bottom in half, then slice

3 sweet bell peppers, a variety of colors, seeded and cut in strips

1 tablespoon olive oil

1 clove garlic, crushed

2 tablespoons fresh chopped dill or fresh chopped basil or fresh oregano or 1 teaspoon dried herb

2 tablespoons fresh or 1 teaspoon dried chopped dillweed or basil, or oregano

¼ teaspoon salt (optional)

¼ teaspoon pepper (optional)

Saute crushed garlic in oil over medium heat. Add peppers and onions, saute until they are limp but still hold their shape. Add the herb of your choice and toss the pepper and onions to thoroughly flavor them. Add salt and pepper to taste. Serve as a condiment on hamburgers, steaks, chicken or rice. Serves 6.

Autumn Leaves — Beautiful Until They Fall

COLLEGEVILLE (Montgomery Co.) — Autumn is the season when we admire the colors of the leaves as they change, but hate to rake them up after they fall.

What is to be done with the heaps of dead leaves?

Leaves and many other plant materials from the yard and kitchen can be recycled naturally by composting. In a compost pile, organic debris is digested by beneficial bacteria, molds, and invertebrates to form compost, a dark, rich and crumbly humus-like material.

Compost is a valuable soil amendment for your garden or potting soil. It adds nutrients, attracts beneficial soil macrofauna such as earthworms, increases the soil's capacity to retain nutrients, improves the soil texture, loosens heavy clay soils and improves sandy soil's ability to hold water, and suppress soil-borne plant diseases.

To get started on composting, chose a flat, easily accessible, shady area of your yard, ideally near your garden. You can heap the compost in an uncontained pile, build a bin, or buy a manufactured bin. A layer of hollow-stemmed plants such as corn stalks or tomato stems at the bottom will help air to circulate through the pile. As you add items, make sure you have a mix of high carbon "browns" (such as all those autumn leaves! — it helps to run over them once with the lawn mower before adding them to the pile) and high nitrogen "greens" (wetter materials such as grass clippings, herbivore manures, and fruit and veggie scraps from the kitchen). Leaves can be composted alone, but they will take longer to decompose The powerhouses of your pile, the beneficial organisms that will call the pile their home and digest your debris, can be added by shoveling in a small amount of finished compost or good garden soil uncontaminated by pesticides, fungicides, or herbicides.

The beneficial organisms that do the work of decomposition require food, water, oxygen, and warmth. A good diet is a good mix of "browns" and "greens." Keep your pile moist, but not soggy. Weekly or monthly turning ensures your decomposers have enough air to carry out their valuable work. As the decomposer work crew carries out their life processes, the pile will warm up. Turning the pile also ensures that material on the outside has a turn in the warmer center where the most rapid decomposition is happening. In the wintertime, however, even the best pile will slow down. Then it is time to put the pitchfork away, and allow yourself and your workers to rest until spring.

"No-no's" for your pile are diseased plants, weeds that are going to seed, dog or cat droppings, and meat, fish, oils, or dairy products. Though a properly maintained pile reaches temperatures high enough to kill many weed seeds and pathogens, a backyard pile may not reach those optimum conditions.A well-maintained pile does not smell. If a pile smells "rotten" or has an ammonia odor, it could be too wet, or too compacted.

Contact your county extension office to learn where backyard compost education workshops are scheduled.

Pennsylvania Dutch Favorites

Pennsylvania Dutch cooks are longed known for their many robust desserts.

CHICKEN POT PIE

Filling:
- 2 cups water
- 14-ounces boneless, skinless chicken breasts, cut into ½-inch pieces
- 2 carrots, peeled, cubed
- 2 ribs celery, sliced
- 1 medium onion, chopped
- 2 tablespoons chicken bouillon granules
- ¼ teaspoon black pepper
- ¼ cup butter
- 1 cup heavy whipping cream
- 4 tablespoons corn starch
- 1 tablespoon flour
- 1 cup frozen peas

In 4-quart saucepan, combine water, chicken, carrots, celery, and onion; bring to a boil. Reduce heat to simmer and cook 15 minutes stirring occasionally.

Add chicken bouillon, pepper and butter. Dissolve cornstarch and flour into whipping cream and stir into chicken mixture. Simmer 3 minutes stirring frequently until thickened. Add peas and set aside.

Crust:
- 2 cups flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ⅔ cup shortening
- 5-7 tablespoons cold water

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Combine flour and salt. Using pastry blender, cut in shortening until particles are the size of small peas. Sprinkle 1 tablespoon of water at a time over flour mixture and toss with fork to blend. Add enough water to hold the dough together, form into two balls. Roll out bottom crust on floured surface to 1-inch larger than inverted 9-inch deep-dish pie plate. Lift dough off floured surface by rolling onto rolling pin and unroll over pie plate. Ease the dough into the plate loosely and press in place.

Trim bottom crust even with edge of plate and pour filling into bottom crust. Roll out top crust; cut slits for steam to escape.

Cover filling with top crust and fold top crust under bottom crust. Seal crust and flute edge. Bake in 400 degree oven for 35-40 minutes or until the crust is golden brown and filling is bubbling.

Let stand 15-20 minutes before serving. Makes 6 servings.

Meat, potatoes, and seven sweets and sour traditionally appear on the tables laden with Pennsylvania Dutch goodness.

Long lauded for their robust meals, Pennsylvania Dutch cooks depend on homegrown vegetables and meat. Salt and pepper are the basic seasonings so as not to hide meat's natural flavoring. Vegetable dishes are often slathered with butter — browned is best.

Home preserved pickles, chow chow, and relishes add color and variety to every meal.

And, what good Pennsylvania Dutch cook would think of serving only one dessert to guests? Shoo-fly pie, pumpkin pie, black walnut cake, and whoopie pies are often offered to Sunday dinner guests.

Here is a recipe for Black Walnut Cake.

BLACK WALNUT CAKE
- 1½ cups sugar
- ½ cup butter
- ¾ cup milk
- 2 cups flour
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- ½ cup black walnuts, chopped
- 4 egg whites

Cream together butter and sugar. Mix flour and baking powder. Blend alternately with milk to creamed mixture. Beat egg whites. Add to batter. Add chopped walnuts. Pour into two greased 8-inch round pans. Bake at 25-30 minutes at 350 degrees.

Revival of the Slow Cooker

In the past several years, the slow cooker has emerged as a popular appliance for quick meal preparation. And, if it and the food have been handled properly, it is a very safe, handy way to provide nutritious meals for your family and friends.

• Testing Your Slow Cooker — The food safety concern surrounding the slow cooker is its ability to reach a temperature above 140 Fahrenheit (F) within four hours. Since bacteria grow rapidly between the temperatures of 40 F and 140 F, it is of great importance that food not be in that range for more than four hours so as to limit this growth.

To determine if your slow cooker is reaching this temperature, you will have to do some experimenting on a day that you are home. Prepare a recipe and check to see if the temperature rises above 140 F within four hours on the low setting. It would be better to prepare a thick food, like chili, gumbo, or stew, since this would take longer to reach the temperature as compared to a thin food, like chicken noodle soup. Quickly take the temperature, with a thermometer, since it drops rapidly when opening the lid. If the temperature doesn't reach 140 F within four hours, there is a problem with the slow cooker and it should be thrown away.

• Preparing Food in a Slow Cooker — When cooking meat or poultry in the slow cooker, make sure it is completely defrosted and cut into small pieces. These appliances were not made to help thaw or cook large pieces of meat or poultry. If unthawed meat/poultry or large pieces of meat/poultry are placed in the slow cooker, they will not reach 140 F quick enough and could possibly result in a foodborne illness.

If you cut the meat/poultry and vegetables into smaller pieces the night before, make sure you store them in the refrigerator to limit bacterial growth and in separate containers to avoid cross-contamination. Since vegetables take longer to cook in the slow cooker, place them on the bottom and to the sides. Add the meat and then the liquid, like broth, water, or sauce.

Fill the slow cooker no less than half-full and no more than two-thirds full. Only lift the lid occasionally to stir the food and check for doneness.

While it is safe to cook food on low all day, it is suggested, if possible, that you place the setting on high for the first hour to help the temperature reach 140 F as quickly as possible.

• Power Outage — If the power goes out while you're not home, you will have to throw the food away. If it goes out while you are at home, finish cooking the food on the gas stovetop or grill or in the gas oven. If the food is completely cooked and the power goes out, it will be safe to eat for up to two hours.

• Storing Leftovers — Any leftovers should be placed in shallow containers and in the refrigerator within two hours after cooking is completed. Although it is not proper to reheat leftovers in a slow cooker, you can place foods that have been reheated to 165 F (on the stovetop or grill or in the microwave or oven) in a preheated slow cooker.

• Converting Conventional Recipes — Many preparation steps are not necessary when using a slow cooker. For example, vegetables do not need sauted or browned. In addition, all ingredients can be added at the beginning of cooking with the exception of milk, sour cream, or cream, all of which should be added during the last hour of cooking.

Liquids in the slow cooker do not boil away as they do in conventional cooking. You may need to reduce the liquid by half. There are exceptions to the rule - soups and recipes with long grain converted rice (¼ cup liquid per 1 cup of rice).

The following provides a conversion from conventional cooking times to slow cooker cooking times.

• Conventional Method Slow Cooker Method — 15 to 30 minutes High: 1.5 to 2.5 hours Low: 4 to 8 hours 30 to 40 minutes High: 3 to 4 hours Low: 6 to 10 hours 50 minutes to 3 hours High: 4 to 6 hours Low: 8 to 18 hours Most uncooked meat/poultry and vegetable combinations will require at least 8 hours on low.

ANSWER — Penny Haber from Bucks County wanted instructions on making strawberries or raspberry jelling using a Victoria Squeezo Strainer to prepare the fruit. Thanks to Ona Martin for writing that she has been using a Squeezo Strainer with a berry screen to make blackberry puree for jam for many years. Follow the recipe with the 1.75-ounce box of Sure-Jel: 1 box Sure-Jel to 5 cups puree and 7 cups sugar. (6 cups puree also works).

ANSWER — A reader requested a diabetic recipe to can peaches using natural pineapple juice without sugar. Thanks to Susie Fisher, Lewistown, for writing that for years she has been canning peaches and pears without adding processed sugar. Fill the jar with fruit and use ready-to-drink orange or pineapple juice instead of syrup. Process as usual.

She uses canned pineapple juice or frozen concentrate mixed as directed on can. She has found that brand name juices seem to have better flavor than store brands.

According to dietetic exchanges, two peach or pear halves are equal to one whole fresh fruit. The juice is equal to the fruit juice listed on exchange charts.

ANSWER — A reader from Lebanon wanted a recipe for pizza sauce that tastes like the Ragu brand. Thanks to a Lititz reader for sending a recipe. She does not know if it tastes like the Ragu brand, but writes that the recipe makes her family's favorite sauce. She also uses it on spaghetti.

3 tablespoons pizza seasoning
1 gallon tomato paste

Cook onions and green peppers and put through strainer. Add to tomato juice. Add remaining ingredients except tomato paste. Bring to a boil for 10 minutes. Add tomato paste, keeping sauce stirred until it boils again. Sauce will be thick. Makes approximately 25 pints. Process in boiling water for 20 minutes.

Note: I cut the amount of spices in half, especially the red pepper.

ANSWER — Eleanor Heinsey, Denver, wanted a recipe to make green tomato chutney relish. Thanks to Lee Laverty, Mount Joy, for this recipe.

Green Tomato/Apple Chutney

3 pounds green tomatoes
2 pounds tart apples
2 cups golden raisins
1½ cups diced onions
2 teaspoons minced garlic
2 cups packed light brown sugar
1 cup granulated sugar
2 teaspoons non-iodized salt
1½ cup cider vinegar
3-4 tablespoons minced fresh ginger
1½ tablespoons mustard seed
2 teaspoons ground coriander
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1 teaspoon finely minced fresh red pepper OR ½ teaspoon dried red pepper flakes OR ¼ teaspoon ground pepper

Cut out stem and any blemishes from tomatoes and cut into ½-inch chunks (should have about 8 cups). Place tomatoes in a large deep saucepan. Peel, core, and cut apples into ½-inch chunks. Add raisins, onion, garlic, sugars, salt, and vinegar, and bring mixture to a boil over medium high heat. Reduce heat and boil slowly, uncovered, for 30 minutes, stirring often. Add ginger, mustard, coriander, cinnamon, and hot pepper and continue to boil slowly until it holds a mounted shape when lifted with spoon. Taste for seasoning (remember it mellows as it ages in the jar) add more spice or vinegar to taste. Ladle boiling chutney into sterilized pint or half-pint jars and top with two-piece lids. Process in boiling water bath (10 minutes, half-pints; 15 minutes pints). Let the chutney mellow for several weeks before serving. Yield about 8 cups. Keeps for up to a year in the pantry; months after opening in the refrigerator.

Salt and pepper to taste
½ cup cream

Add dash salt and pepper and cook 2 minutes. Stir in cream to form a thick paste. Slowly stir in chicken broth. Stir until thick. Add a few dashes Worcestershire sauce and hot sauce; mix well. Simmer five minutes; add mushrooms, onion mixture, and patties. Heat 10 minutes and serve.

In separate pan, melt 3 tablespoons butter. Saute onion rings and mushrooms until tender.

Ida's Notebook

by

Ida Risser

The other Sunday afternoon when our young grandchildren came for a few hours, I decided to share the contents of an old box with them. We pulled the box out from under some bags of wool material stored in a closet for making braided rugs.

It was labeled 1920-1930 and had an assortment of things from my youth. There were boxes of dainty handkerchiefs as that was a traditional inexpensive gift to give at that time. There was a broken baby rattle and a torn paper gun that, at one time, made a "bang" sound. There was a pair of wooden beads that I remember wearing.

And, then there were those things that I was never allowed to use — a big box of crayons and many new pencils. Some had my name printed on them in gold color.

There was a notebook laying on top of the collection of things. I turned it in to an English teacher in high school. It was a heavy book full of information and pictures on the Netherlands and their possessions. For some reason Holland and the royal family always fascinated me.

Thus, when I finally got to Holland many years later, I was delighted to see the farms and cities. I saw Queen Wilhelmina's summer palace and climbed to the top of a working windmill. I saw the big flower market from where the blossoms are shipped all over the world. Even the houses in Amsterdam with their very narrow fronts were viewed from a boat in their many canals. They have very large dairy farms that have been reclaimed from the sea and the water is held back by dikes.

That box brought back many memories and I am glad that I could share it.

Well Preserved

Food Safety In Freezer Failure

The Well Preserved news column is prepared by Lancaster County Cooperative Extension. It includes food preservation information and questions.

Did you know that the loss of power could jeopardize the safety of your food? Knowing how to determine if food is safe and how to keep food safe will help minimize the potential loss of food and reduce the risk of food borne illness.

The key to determining the safety of foods in the refrigerator and the freezer is how cold they are.

Thermometers will help you know if the food is at a safe temperature. An appliance thermometer will indicate the temperature in the refrigerator or freezer no matter how long the power has been out. An instant read food thermometer can measure the temperature of a particular food if you are not sure that it is cold enough. Most bacteria multiply rapidly at temperatures above 40F. Food should be stored in the refrigerator between 34 and 40F, and foods in the freezer should be at 0F or lower.

When the power is out, a full freezer should keep food safe about two days; a half-full freezer will keep foods at safe temperatures about one day. Foods should be safe in the refrigerator for four to six hours.

The best way to keep the refrigerator and freezer cold is to leave the door closed. Every time the door is opened cold air escapes causing the foods inside to warm up. Add bags of ice or dry ice to the freezer if it appears the power will be off for an extended time. Plan ahead and know where dry ice and block ice can be purchased. Because dry ice can cause burns, you do not want to handle it with bare hands.

It can be wrapped in several layers of newspaper or paper bags. Allow two to three pounds of dry ice per cubic foot of freezer space. More will be needed in an upright freezer in order to place some on each shelf.

Consider what you can do ahead of time to store your food safely in an emergency. Coolers are a great help for keeping food cold. Have a couple on hand along with frozen gel packs. When your freezer is not full, keep items close together-this helps the food stay cold longer.

A full freezer uses less energy as well as keeping food colder during a power outage. Freezing water in milk cartons is an easy method of filling space in the freezer.

Never taste food to determine its safety. Some foods may look and smell fine but may contain bacteria that can cause food borne illnesses. Some of these bacteria can produce toxins which are not destroyed by cooking. Dispose of these foods by sealing them in a plastic garbage bag or burying the food. And remember, food that is not safe for you is not safe for your pet.

Discard the following foods if they are above 40F for over two hours: meat, poultry, fish, eggs and egg substitutes, milk, cream, yogurt, soft cheese, casseroles, stews, soups, lunch meats and hot dogs, creamy-based salad dressings, and cookie dough. Discard these items if they are above 50F for over eight hours: opened mayonnaise, tarter sauce and horseradish.

The following foods can be kept at room temperature a few days: butter or margarine, hard and processed cheese, fresh fruits and vegetables, dried fruits, nuts, coconut, opened jars of vinegar-based salad dressing, jelly, relish, taco sauce, barbecue sauce, mustard, ketchup, olives, peanut butter, fruit juices, fresh herbs and spices, fruit pies, breads, rolls, muffins, cakes (except cream cheese frosted or cream-filled cakes). You should still discard anything that turns moldy or has an unusual odor.

The following information is based on frequently asked questions. Can food in the freezer be refrozen if it is partially thawed? Yes, the food may be safely refrozen if the food still contains ice crystals.

Evaluate each item separately. Be sure to discard any items that have come into contact with raw meat juices. Partial thawing and refreezing may reduce the quality of some food, but the food will remain safe to eat.

A snowstorm knocked down the power lines; can I put the food from the refrigerator and freezer out in the snow? No, frozen food can thaw if it is exposed to the sun's rays even when the temperature is very cold. Food temperature could be raised enough to allow growth of food borne bacteria.

Additionally, foods could be exposed to unsanitary conditions or to animals that may harbor bacteria or disease. Never consume food that has come in contact with an animal. If it is cold enough, take advantage of the cold temperature to make ice in empty milk cartons, cans, or buckets and put the homemade ice in your refrigerator, freezer, or coolers.

Can cooked foods be refrozen? Bacteria grow quickly in cooked foods. Do not refreeze these products if they have thawed. Do not use or refreeze convenience and/or packaged dinners that have thawed.

What about fruits and vegetables? Frozen fruits and vegetables that are frozen plain (with no sauce) may be cooked and refrozen if they show no signs of spoilage. Fruits usually ferment when they start to spoil, which would not make them unsafe, but will make the flavor objectionable. Refreeze if they look and smell acceptable.

Virginia Kids Learn About Farm Safety

GAY BROWNLEE
Virginia Correspondent

ROCKINGHAM, Va. — At the Farm Safety Day Camp held at the Rockingham County Fairgrounds, every 20 minutes, a voice would boom over the public address system in the livestock barns. That is where safety stations were set up, after bedding and manure were scooped out.

The announcer would say when it was time for the Pigs, Lambs, Horses, Dogs, Cats, Ducks, and Cows to advanced to another station.

On that particular day, the pigs, lambs, horses, dogs, cats, ducks, and cows were not real farm animals at all. They were only names of various groups, given to tell them apart. Name stickers on their clothes made them easy to identify.

About 200 kids came to the camp and Jenny Hansbrough and Vickie Davis, who planned everything, needed 100 volunteers to help out. Nurses Jenny and Vickie work in the Corporate Health Department of Rockingham Memorial Hospital.

"Our goal for the camp is to educate the children and parents about the dangers and hidden dangers on farms," said Nurse Jenny.

The kids did hands-on work that was really cool, like handling portable power tools. They also took turns outside learning how to use a fire extinguisher properly if a fire breaks out. The small fires were ignited by experts from ABC Fire, Inc. The kids got to play games like "Tar Wars."

At the small power tools station, 12-year old Josh McNett and the kids in his group followed directions from Vincent Gilmer. Later, Josh said he had learned how to measure and how to drill the same way a carpenter does.

Art Mitchell and Dale Nicely stood beside a huge tractor. Art pulled up his pant legs and showed the kids an amazing sight. Neither of his legs was real; instead he walked around on artificial (prosthetic) legs. Dale Nicely had one prosthetic leg.

Years ago Mitchell got too close to a piece of equipment. The machines moving parts caught his legs and were injured in a terrible way.

Before his body could recover Mitchell needed to be operated on over and over. But one day he returned to school, pushing himself in a wheelchair and went right on teaching vo-ag students.

"I wish I had good feet," he told the kids at safety camp.

Richard Pfamatter said a machine with moving parts doesn't know the difference between an arm, a leg, a plant or anything else it comes in contact with. It just cuts.

Never crawl under equipment, even if it is turned off. Pfamatter warned the kids that a part of could come down, unexpectedly, and crush or trap someone. Then the person could suffocate (die because he doesn't have air to breathe).

Laura Reeves and Amanda Showalter, both 10, were fascinated to learn that if you can't see straight, lots of things can go wrong. They staggered around as if they had been drinking alcoholic beverages when they put on funny goggles from the state policeman. The girls said it was a really weird experience when they tried to walk or pick up something from the floor.

"You got dizzy and you couldn't concentrate," Laura said.

Ernest Havingh from the Virginia Cooperative Extension, said that large animals can be temperamental creatures. Imagine a bull or a cow having feelings?

"Never ever trust a bull," he said. "And a cow that is ordinarily friendly can become very defensive when she has just had a calf."

Lots of kids enjoyed the Hunter Safety information from Carroll Knupp. He taught them about wildlife, guns and different kinds of ammunition. Now the young sportsmen who especially enjoy turkey hunting know what supplies to have along.

Greg Will, 12, learned that wearing blaze orange when he goes hunting is really important. The color is so bright that others can see you from far away in an open field. In the thick woods, orange alerts hunters that other hunters are nearby and they shouldn't point or shoot their guns in that direction.

At the sanitation station Amanda Barnhart and Sharla Rodes, said they didn't know that germs you can't see live on dirty hands. Now they realize when people eat first without scrubbing their hands, the nasty germs hop on the food and take a quick ride into the mouth and tummy. Then, oops, someone groans and says: "Help, Im sick...I think Im gonna throw up."

Here an 11-year old West Highland terrier held by Kim Morrison is stroked by 5-7 age group children.

Here is a list of times to wash hands with soap:

— always before eating or handling food
— always before setting the table, washing, drying or putting dishes away
— always after going to the bathroom at home, school or anywhere
— always after blowing the nose — even with a tissue
— always after playing with pets or tending livestock.

Some of the other safety stations targeted camping, finger printing, disabilities, helmets and crashing, survival, electricity, sun exposure, grain and silos.

Here Nick Clayton, 13, learns the rules of operating a portable power tool. Safety glasses protect his eyes when he removes a drill bit.

Under the direction of ABC Fire, Inc., Waynesboro, kids at the Farm Safety Day Camp, are practicing putting a fire out with a fire extinguisher, by pointing the hose toward the base of the fire while standing 8-10 feet away from the fire.

Since his farm accident years ago, Art Mitchell walks on artificial (prosthetic) legs. In school he sits in a wheelchair to teach his vo-ag students. He has overcome the sad experience. Now he tells people he is an example of what can happen when someone gets too close to a piece of equipment that is running.

Dear Twig:

I saw weird pumpkins at a farmers' market. They were white! Ah! Spooky! What do you know?

White pumpkins aren't too common. But more and more are being grown and sold. White pumpkins aren't seasick. They're supposed to be white. When you carve them into jack o' lanterns they turn out looking like ghosts — pumpkin-shaped ghosts that, as far as I know, can't float through walls or yell "Boo!" Which is OK by me.

A common white pumpkin variety is Lumina. Lumina pumpkins get about 10 inches across and weigh 10 pounds or so. A typical orange carving pumpkin — a variety like Connecticut Field, for instance — is bigger: the size of a basketball and 15 to 25 pounds.

The flesh of a Lumina is orange like most other pumpkins. But it's denser and sweeter and great for cooking.

Other white pumpkin varieties include Casper, Snowball, Baby Boo (tiny!) and Valenciano.

If you're really interested in weird pumpkins — and who isn't? — there's also a blue pumpkin (Australian Blue), a red pumpkin (Rouge d'Etant) and the pumpkin that served as Cinderella's carriage (Rouge Vif d'Estampes).

Mice not included.

Lancaster DHIA Members, Staff Compile Cookbook

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — "We wanted something fun, and not just for husbands," said Kristen High of the quest to find a spectacular way to celebrate Lancaster County DHIA's 10th anniversary.

She and her husband Jere, manager and director of technology for the organization, examined and discarded numerous ideas. While the couple were attending a national DHIA convention in Louisville, Ky. in March, an idea clicked.

Items were being auctioned at the event, and when a cookbook compiled by Idaho DHIA members went over the auction block, Kristen whispered to her husband, "That's it!"

The "it" referred to compiling a cookbook using recipes from members and staff.

Within six months, the Highs have accomplished an amazing feat — 3,000 copies of an easy-to-read cookbook with 1,053 recipes divided into 17 categories and a comprehensive index.

The recipes are "tried and true" favorites submitted by Lancaster DHIA members in Pennsylvania, Maryland, and Delaware, and 60 DHIA employees.

The 2,350 DHIA members were allowed to submit as many recipes as desired. Duplicates were discarded.

Interspersed among the recipes are short paragraphs about members' farms or families such as this example:

Harold and Joan Probst have been testing for us for over 30 years. My dad bought the Probst farm from Harold's dad Carl in 1955. Harold probably enjoyed coming back home one day a month. He even milked for me an evening or two when I went away. When we started testing, our herd average was 7,000 pounds. I can only remember one time that Joan was late, when she had car trouble. She is usually waiting here for us, doing a crossword puzzle or reading a book.

The cookbook also includes a children's section. These are recipes submitted by members' children. Some are quite unique such as the one by the Highs' son Joshua, 7. He submitted "Ants on a Stick," which he devised by spreading a celery stick with peanut butter and dotting with raisins.

Using Microsoft Access and Publisher software, Kristen typed every recipe and had it proofread three times.

When it came to translating some handwritten recipe submissions, Kristen said her many years experience of working in a doctor's office helped her decipher hard-to-read script.

Luncheon menu includes Garden Chowder, Hearty Sandwich, Rainbow Punch, and Rhubarb Cheesecake. Jere and Kristen High with daughter Jana are eager to taste these dishes prepared from recipes submitted to the "Lancaster DHIA Cookbook."

"It was fun getting the recipes and seeing where they came from," Kristen said. "It made me really hungry when typing them."

"One time it was 10 at night, and I thought I had to make one of the recipes, but I didn't have all the ingredients."

Kristen had another reason for hunger pangs. She was pregnant and finished the final typing just in time to give birth to the couple's third child, Ian, now eight weeks old.

The Highs submitted the computer discs to a local publisher to print. To help keep costs down, the Highs are collating the pages into loose D-ring binders.

"We plan to have plenty of pizza parties to entice friends and relatives to help collate the pages," Kristen said.

"This is not a fund raiser," High said. "We are only charging enough to cover costs for printing the cookbook. The neat thing is that the cookbook will be enjoyed by the whole family."

DHIA technicians are delivering ordered copies to members.

Copies of the cookbook also can be picked up at the Lancaster DHIA office, 1592 Old Line Road, Manheim. The cookbook can be purchased via mail order by sending a check payable to Lancaster DHIA for $14 and $7 for shipping and handling. Be sure to include your name, complete address, and phone number and mail to Jere and Kristen High, 1737 Sanctuary Rd., Manheim, PA 17545. For more information, call the Highs at (717) 664-5073.

- ½ gallon raspberry or vanilla frozen yogurt, softened
- ½ gallon milk

HEARTY SANDWICH
Charlene Martin
Lancaster County

Bread:
- ⅔ cup boiling water
- ⅓ cup quick oats
- 2 tablespoons whole wheat flour
- 2 tablespoons brown sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon butter
- 1 tablespoon yeast
- 2 tablespoons warm water
- 1¼ cups flour

Sandwich ingredients:
- ⅔ cup mayonnaise
- 1 teaspoon mustard
- ½ teaspoon horseradish, optional
- ½ pound sliced American cheese
- ½ pound sliced roast beef
- ½ pound sliced turkey breast
- Sliced onions
- Tomatoes
- ½ pound sliced smoked ham
- Lettuce
- Sliced peppers
- ½ pound sliced Swiss cheese

Bread: Pour boiling water over oats, wheat flour, sugar, salt, and butter. Cool until lukewarm. Dissolve yeast in warm water and add to batter. Add enough flour to make a smooth, elastic dough. Knead 5-7 minutes. Place in greased bowl and let rise until doubled. Grease 12-inch pizza pan and shape dough to fit pan. Let rise until doubled.

Bake at 350 degrees until golden brown on top, approximately 20-30 minutes. Butter crust and cover with clean cloth until cool. When cool, cut loaf in half, having two flat circles.

Sandwich ingredients: Combine mayonnaise, mustard, and horseradish. Spread on inside of bread. Starting on bottom, assemble sandwich: bread, dressing, American cheese, roast beef (patting each layer of meat with paper towel to reduce moisture, which creates soggy and wilted vegetables), peppers, turkey breast, onions, tomatoes, ham, lettuce, and Swiss cheese. Butter other half of bread and place on top. Cover and chill at least two hours before serving. Yield: 8 servings.

This is a highlight for parties or can be made ahead of time for a quick meal.

GARDEN CHOWDER
Brenda and Glenn Book
(Bodendale Farms)
Lancaster County

- ½ cup chopped green pepper
- ½ cup chopped onion
- ¼ cup butter
- 1 cup diced potatoes
- 1 cup diced celery
- 1 cup chopped cauliflower
- 1 cup chopped carrots
- 1 cup chopped broccoli
- 3 cups water
- 3 chicken bouillon cubes
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- ¼ cup flour
- 2 cups milk or evaporated skim milk
- 1 tablespoon fresh or dried parsley
- 2 cups shredded cheddar cheese

In Dutch oven, saute green peppers and onion in butter until tender. Add vegetables, water, bouillon, salt and pepper, and bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer 20 minutes. Combine flour and milk until smooth and add to vegetables. Bring to a boil; cook and stir 2 minutes. Add parsley. Just before serving, stir in cheese until melted. Yield: 2 quarts.

I often double the recipe. If you have a food processor, chopping the vegetables goes very quickly. This is a wonderful soup to use all the vegetables in your garden. It also freezes very well.

ANSWER — Helen Shaffer, Lansdale, wanted to know how to get rid of sparrows nesting behind shutters. She tried chasing them out to no avail. Thanks to Rhoda Sauder who writes that they found a simple remedy to discourage birds from nesting in places that cause sanitation problems or inconvenience. Put an empty styrofoam egg box or boxes in those places and birds will not build a nest there. Rhoda writes that lots of barn swallows are in their barn. She and her husband love them, but when the birds tried to build a nest over her husband's workbench, they fastened an egg box above the light fixture to keep them away.

ANSWER — Susie Fisher, Lewistown, suggests the reader looking for wool to make into rugs to check out local thrift shops for out-of-season coats and clothing. ANSWER — Becky Marshall wanted to know where to find saddle seat clothing at reasonable prices. Or the name and telephone number of a person who makes them. ANSWER — Earl Thoman wrote that several months ago, in this column a reader recommended using Juicy Fruit gum to get rid of moles. He wanted to know how large a piece of gum should be used and how far apart the pieces should be placed. Thanks to Howard Gibson, Graterford, who recommends using ⅓ piece of Juicy Fruit gum, but did not specify how far apart. Use more as needed.

ANSWER — Howard Gibson, Graterford, writes that people who are interested in Depression glass, in farming or gardening should ask to be put on the following mailing list of this book dealer: Edward R. Hailton, bookseller, Falls Village, CT 06031-5000. Gibson said many newspaper-sized publications that go from A-Z are mailed to those on the list, and writes that it is an excellent publication. Editor's Note: This is the reader's opinion. We are not recommending or disavowing this action.

ANSWER — Wilmer Stauffer, Millersville, wanted to know if anyone has regular Puerto Rican sweet potatoes to sell. Howard Gibson writes the seeds for these sweet potatoes and for other open pollinated and heirloom seeds are available through Seed Savers Exchange, 3076 N. Winn Rd., Decorah, Iowa 52101.

ANSWER — For readers who are interested, Shirley Orfanella sends instructions for several flower drying methods.

• Air drying is the best and oldest method. Lay flowers flat or hang in bunches or stand upright in a vase. The main goal in any method is to get rid of moisture. So give flowers space for circulation. Leaves will especially hold moisture and will rot if not given enough space. Tall grasses and lavender do better laying flat on newspaper or cardboard.

Mosses dry very well if laid on crumbled paper in a box. Do not pack tightly. You could stand heavy-headed flowers and sweet corn in a box that has chicken wire strung across. Just insert flowers — however the box needs to be deep enough to handle stems.

If hanging flowers such as roses in bunches, remove all lower leaves and thorns especially at the tying point. Tie loosely and stagger flower heads so they get circulation. Be sure to cut roses before they are too open.

• Glycerine is tricky and you would be wise to get instructions when purchasing the glycerine. The advantage of using glycerine is that flowers and leaves remain supple.

• Dessicants (drying agents) are readily available and instructions come with the purchase.

• Pressing can be done by putting flowers in between the pages of old phone books. Place wax paper on either side of the flowers. Weigh the books down. Check flowers for dryness in about two weeks.

Shirley writes that there are tons of ideas, tips, and hints available but most are described on products sold for flower drying. Of course air drying and pressing are free. A lot of information is good, old common sense.

There are ways to repair flowers, lengthening stems, etc.

Dried flowers may be stored several months in long boxes with paper between layers and delicate flower heads wrapped gently in tissue paper. Never allow dry flowers near dampness.

Check craft stores for supplies and information. Check local florists for boxes that they usually throw away.

Guidelines To Market Homemade Food

COLUMBIA, Md. — "That's the greatest hot sauce I've ever tasted! Why don't you start a business making and selling it?" Do you have friends or relatives comment about your special chocolate chip cookies or have a tomato sauce recipe that was handed down from your great-grandmother?

If so, a new publication, Starting a Specialty Food Processing Business in Maryland, was written for you.The Howard County Economic Development Authority, in partnership with funding from the USDA project titled, "Bridging the Urban/Rural Divide: Marketing Local Food in the Mid-Atlantic," has produced a manual that sequentially outlines the process of producing a value-added food product and getting it into the marketplace. The manual is organized into four sections.

The first section, Turning on Your Idea, deals with evaluating the feasibility of starting a new specialty food-processing business and such issues as health and environmental regulations as they apply to food processing in Maryland.

The second section, Turning Out Your Product, deals with producing a product. It includes discussions on recipe development, analytical testing, packaging, co-packers, HACCP and Better Processing School training, process development and requirements and regulations about product labeling, bar coding and weights.

The third section, Turning Into a Business, deals with business planning and marketing.

The fourth section, Turning to Other Resources, contains resource directory for suppliers, key organizations, governmental agencies, manufacturers, co-packers, trade publications, trade shows, and a host of other contacts related to specialty food production and marketing.

Copies are available for $14 each, including shipping and handling. Checks should be made payable to the Howard County Economic Development Authority (HCEDA). To order a copy of this manual contact:

Howard County Economic Development Authority, Attn: Ginger S. Myers, 6751 Columbia Gateway Drive, Suite 500, Columbia, MD 21046. Or call (410) 313-6500 or gmyers@hceda.org.

Stangl Stirs Collectors' Nostalgia

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

ADAMSTOWN (Berks Co.) — Bobbie Garvey never intended to become an antiques dealer. About 20 years ago, she started collecting Stangl pieces "just because I liked it."

But it got to the point that Garvey's inventory grew so large that selling some pieces seemed a natural progression. That was 12 years ago.

Garvey has an extensive personal collection displayed in her home that she vows she will never sell. But she sells duplicates and is eager to discuss the patterns with patrons.

Her favorites are Kiddie Ware pieces made by Stangl. The delightful sketchings of nursery rhyme characters appealed to children. Today, children who used the pieces are grown, but whenever they see a piece, the nostalgia the pieces evoke often inspires them to purchase one.

The original Kiddie Ware sets sold for $5, but today command prices from $100-$800.

Stangl also made Art Ware such as these bird figurines. From left are Kentucky Warbler, Goldfinch, and Indigo Bunting Bird.

"The sole purpose of Kiddie Ware was to use it, not display it," Garvey said. "So, not a whole lot of it survived."

Stangl was made by Fulper Pottery in Flemington and Trenton, N.J. During the 1940s-1970s, many new patterns were released, and it was common for housewives to visit the factory and pick up occasional pieces.

Dinnerware was made in three main patterns that are most collectible today: Fruit, Fruit and Flower, and Blueberry.

Some patterns were only made for a short time, and are more scarce and more expensive for today's collector.

Art ware was another important aspect of Stangl pottery. Formed into animals and birds, many of these breakable pieces did not survive. Ash trays in many patterns and a Christmas line of Holly and Jewel Tree also were part of the Art Ware.

Almost every piece of Stangl is clearly marked, but reproductions in the Blue Town and Country pattern appeared about 10-15 years ago with the Stangl logo.

"I can tell the difference between the original and the reproductions by feel," Garvey said.

Novice collectors should ask a reputable dealer for advice when considering buying pieces that have been known to be reproduced.

Garvey started out as a dealer in the former Weaver's Antiques Mall along Rt. 272 in Adamstown. When the building was torn down to make room for the new Rt. 222, Garvey, like most of the other dealers at the Weavers, moved to Pine Hills Antique Mall.

Her extensive Stangl collection is only one of those displayed by several other dealers in the same mall.

Bobbie Garvey, in front of her display at Pine Hills Antique Mall, researches Stangl patterns and estimated prices using the Collector's Encyclopedia of Stangl by Robert Runge Jr.

Kiddie Ware is the most popular Stangl collectible. Many collectors recall using these pieces as children, and the nostalgia the pieces evoke cause them to collect Stangl today. Shown are patterns "Little Boy Blue" for $95, "Little Bo Peep" for $95, "Barnyard Friends" for $145, and "Little Qackers" for $158.

These pieces show the variety of patterns Stangl made for everyday use. From left are patterns referred to as Fruit, Tiger Lily, Country Garden, Bella Rosa, and First Love. The pitchers' patterns include Fruit, Flowers, and Thistle, the teapot and warmer is Tiger Lily and creamer and sugar bowl are Fruit.

Pine Hills Antique Mall Showcases Treasures From 100 Dealers

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

ADAMSTOWN (Berks Co.) — Most people expect to find antiques displayed in old, rundown buildings with creaky floors and dark corners crammed with dusty collectibles.

But Pine Hills Antique Mall, which opened in March, retains its new aroma of the post-and-beam building, bursting with natural light and clean, orderly spaces.

It's home for more than 100 dealers, most who relocated Weaver's Antique Mall, which closed after it was slated for demolition to make room for the recently expanded Rt. 222 between Adamstown and Shillington.

Chris Schnader, who owns the property, said that he surveyed about 100 antiques dealers and asked them to list 10 requirements in order of preference that they would prefer for displaying their wares.

Well-lit areas, a clean building and bathrooms, and a friendly, courteous staff topped the list. And these were the requirements Schnader incorporated when he erected a 62x124-foot post-and-beam building. Natural light streams in between the wooden rafters, and the aisles between booths give it a spacious feel.

Schnader said the idea to build a mall came from his dad Robert, who operated the nearby Boehringer's Ice Cream Drive-In. Located on what is commonly referred to Adamstown's Antique Row, the elder Schnader often thought that dealing in antiques would combine well with his seasonal ice cream business, recently transferred to his son.

Although his son had never dealt in antiques before, Robert collects John Deere memorabilia, old lights, and other odds and ends.

Robert Schnader relaxes in front of a booth at Pine Hills Antique Mall. It was Schnader who suggested his son Chris build an antique mall. Chris built a post and beam building, which opened in mid-January. About 90 percent of the dealers are those from the former Weaver's Antique Mall, which closed when the building was slated to be torn down to make room for the recently expanded Rt. 222.

"This is more fun than we expected," Robert said of operating the mall.

His son emphasizes that it is the dealers who have made business successful. "We are happy with their friendly, courteous attitudes."

Loren Gensemer manages the mall located at the north entrance to Adamstown's Antique Row, where routes 272 and 222 converge.

More than 100 dealers exhibit Thursday through Monday, from 10 a.m.-5 p.m. For more information, call (717) 484-6313.

Exotic Antiques From India

There's nothing like a box inlaid with designs of mother-of-pearl or a small table with inlays of ivory to spice up an ordinary room. That's why many collectors are searching for examples of 19th century India art, furniture, and textiles. Periodically furniture, decorative arts, and paintings will show up in shops and at auctions of English antiques.

Prices are on the low side, considering the artistry and quality of the pieces. At an April Skinner auction of European furniture and decorative arts there were bargains. A caned and bone inlaid, Indo-Portuguese chaise lounge sold for $2,225. A miniature portrait on ivory, early 20th century, went for $294.

Prices are even lower for the small tables, chests and boxes that go unrecognized in shops even garage sales. What makes them so fascinating are the combinations of unusual materials such as brass, stained ivory and rosewood with carving. Don't be surprised if they have a British accent. From Chippendale to English Regency, Indian artisans copied the prevailing English fashions.

When the British were in power in India, artists trained at the Indian courts sought employment at British commercial centers such as Calcutta and madras.

Using their skills and native materials they fashioned furniture on commission.

At the same time, the port city of Vizagapatam became known as the furniture capital of India. European ships and European settlers hired local artisans to make Western-style pieces. The specialty of the region was ivory inlay. The designs were engraved and highlighted with black lac. Other motifs were scrolling borders, human figures and architectural scenes.

The many religions of India also influenced designs. Among them Hinduism, Buddhism, Jainism, Mohammedanism and tribal.

Pieces show the origin of their design influences whether Portuguese, Dutch or German. They will be labeled "Indo-Dutch," "Indo-Portuguese," etc.

Fine natural history drawings, as well as paintings of British family and social life were also commissioned. Miniature paintings were also popular in the 19th century. Not long in a small town antique shop in North Carolina, I came across a fine miniature painting on ivory of an English family outing. Indian buildings in the background were a clue to the origin. The shop owner had purchased it along with an estate. The price was $50.

Antique Detective

CLUES: Although many Indian craftsmen received personal recognition, for the most part they are unknown. Unlike the art of other countries, Indian art is rarely signed. Even if it is, the artist is not identifiable. Dealers and collectors will have to rely on their own good taste to judge the value and merits of Indian antiques.

Around the end of the 19th century tourists from America and Europe rediscovered India. The brass and copper trays, jars, boxes, and paisley shawls they brought back are slowly going up in values as collectors are ever on the prowl for something new to collect.

Indian paintings were not only done on ivory but mats, cloth, boards and paper. The permanent mineral colors were bonded by glue and lime. There were also brightly painted boxes and pots, as well as papier-mache' masks for dancers as well as puppets.

Indo-Portuguese, bone inlaid hardwood chaise lounge. Sold at Skinner Auction for $2,225. Photo credit: Skinner Auction Galleries, Boston, Mass.

Wood carvings from Mysore and Kashmir are still being made. The new ones are less detailed.

Major museums are a good place to get acquainted with "the look" of Indian antiques.

Eastern Breeders Excel In Simmental Breeders Sweepstakes

WHITE HALL, Md. — Four hundred eighty-nine Simmental beef cattle were entered in the 18th Annual Simmental Breeders Sweepstakes, July 24-28, at the Kentucky Fair and Exposition Center in Louisville, Ky. Included were breeders from Pennsylvania, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, Ohio and Virginia among 30 plus states represented.

Pond View Farm of White Hall, Md. claimed the prestigious Knic Overpeck Memorial Award for top Simmental entry with a traditional cow/calf pair: Pond View Kim and her heifer calf, Pond View Fidazzle in the open show on Sunday, they were also cow/calf champion in the junior show on Saturday. Pond View Kim is owned by Shane Smithson, who showed entry and several others.

Hudson Pines Farms/Sweet Pea Farms, of New York, Pennsylvania and Maine, was named premier breeder and premier exhibitor with several class and division champions. More than 150 breeders of top Simmental breeding stock gathered in Kentucky to allow junior members to compete with other youngsters and to allow longtime breeders to compete in the open class with anyone wishing to show Simmental cattle.

FC No Joke, a February heifer sired by Joker and owned by Brock Tarr of Newton, Ill., was named top Simmental heifer. Another Joker daughter was named reserve champion: SVF Sheza Beauty, owned by Ronnie Creek of Sunset View Farms, Auburn, Ky. Both animals also won the junior show the day before.

Champion bull was PVF-CW Rapid Fire 0195K, sired by Power Stroke, owned by Triple C Farms of Maple Plains, Minn. Reserve champion bull was Meyers Bonus, a Landridge Jet Black son, and owned by Jerry Walsh of Nebraska.

Tim Fitzgerald, manager of Fox Cross Farm in Alderson, W.Va., judged the junior show and Barry Wesner, owner of Wesner Livestock Enterprises in Chalmers, Ind., judged the open show.

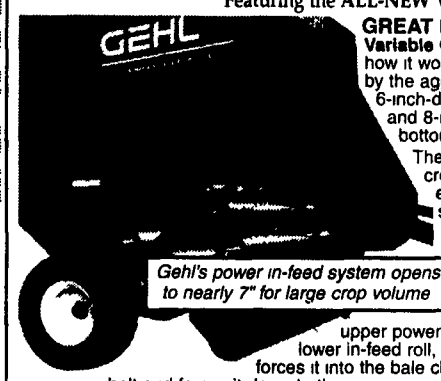
SPECIAL OFFER FOR NEW 4X5 WET HAY BALER GEHL. MODEL RB 2580 ROUND BALERS

Featuring the ALL-NEW Variable Open-Throat Power In-Feed System



Gehl's power in-feed system opens to nearly 7" for large crop volume

GREAT BALING STARTS HERE

Variable Open-Throat Power In-Feed System Here's how it works The incoming crop is pulled off the pickup by the aggressive action of two power in-feed rolls – a 6-inch-diameter pivoting power in-feed roll on top and and 8-inch diameter fixed power in-feed roll on the bottom

The top pivoting power in-feed roll rides over the crop as it is pulled into the bale chamber An extension spring keeps the toproll under constant downward force

The spring tension increases as the variable throat opens from a minimum of 3/4 of an inch up to a maximum opening of nearly 7 inches

The constant downward force of the pivoting upper powered in-feed roll, in combination with the fixed lower in-feed roll, both turning inward, pinches the crop and forces it into the bale chamber The stripping roll strips crop off the belt and forces it down to the incoming crop Adjustable scrapers on the stripping roll and pivoting roll eliminate buildup

York Fair Picks Swine Champions

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.) — The York Fair's market hog shows proved to be a shutout for Red Lion 4-H'er Travis Flory, who walked away from both junior and open competitions with grand champion banners in hand. His winning hog topped the heavyweight category for both shows, logging in on the scales at 260 pounds.

Following in the junior division's reserve champion market hog placing was the light heavyweight champion of Jessica Innerst, Red Lion. Tyler Flory, Red Lion, snagged the lightweight division junior honors.

In the junior swine breeding show, Jessica Innerst, Red Lion, exhibited the champion Berkshire, with Allen Cornbower, New Freedom, in the reserve placing. Andrew Bankert, Hanover, took both champion and reserve titles in the Chester White show, while Randy Wilson, New Freedom, snagged Duroc champion and reserve ribbons.

Russell Wilson, New Freedom, claimed champion honors in the Hampshire breed show, over reserve champion winner Lane Innerst, Red Lion. Rick Wilson, New Freedom, earned both top honors in the Poland show, with Jessicya Robinson, Delta, winning all the championships in the Spotted Poland competition.

Yorkshire junior division breed champion was Russell Wilson, besting his brother Randy Wilson in the reserve spot. Both champion and reserve honors in the Landrace category went to Emily Robinson, Delta.

In open class hog breeding competition, Greg and Beth Innerst had the supreme champion pair, a matched set of Berkshires. Mike and Sarah Weber, New Freedom, exhibited the supreme champion gilt, a Yorkshire. Supreme champion boar honors went to the Trostle family, Red Lion, with their Hampshire breed winner. Judge for the swine show was Ken Fetteroff, Snyder County.

Union County West End Fair Conducts Livestock Sale

LAURELTON (Union Co.) — The 24th annual Union County West End Fair Junior Livestock Sale was conducted in Laurelton recently.

Fifty-five different members of several Union County 4-H clubs and the Mifflinburg FFA Chapter sold animals at the sale. A total of 123 lots containing six rabbit meat pens, 12 steers, 42 market hogs, and 62 market lambs were sold.

Forty-two buyers supported the youth by purchasing animals at the 77th annual Union County West End Fair. This year's sale grossed more than $43,950, which broke the previous record set in 2001. Barry Sands served as the auctioneer at the sale.

The grand champion market steer was purchased by Sue Iddlings for The Carriage Corner Restaurant and Idding's Quarry of Mifflinburg. A bid of $2.50 per pound was accepted for the 1,235-pound Angus crossbred steer owned by Douglas Wolfe of Mifflinburg. Doug is the son of William and Jean Wolfe and received his American FFA Degree at last year's National FFA Convention.

The 1,290-pound reserve champion market steer was owned by Jennifer Boop. Her steer was purchased by Robert Hamm for the Country Cupboard Restaurant in Lewisburg for $2 per pound. Jennifer is a member of the Cowan Ag 4-H Club. The Mifflinburg native is the daughter of Dennis and Tammy Boop. Other steers were sold at an average price of 92 cents per pound.

The champion market hog was sold for $7 per pound and was purchased by Robert Hamm for the Country Cupboard Restaurant in Lewisburg. The 257-pound market hog was owned by Adam Wolfe of Lewisburg. Adam is a member of the Kelly-ite 4-H club and will be a senior at the Lewisburg Area High School this fall. He is the son of Dennis and Anna Wolfe.

Lindsay Spangler was the owner of the 226-pound reserve champion market hog. It was purchased by Clifford Valentine for the Mifflinburg Bank & Trust Company at $5 per pound. Lindsay is the daughter of Glenn and Patricia Spangler of Mifflinburg. She served as president of the Mifflinburg FFA Chapter and will be enrolled in the College of Agriculture at Penn State this fall.

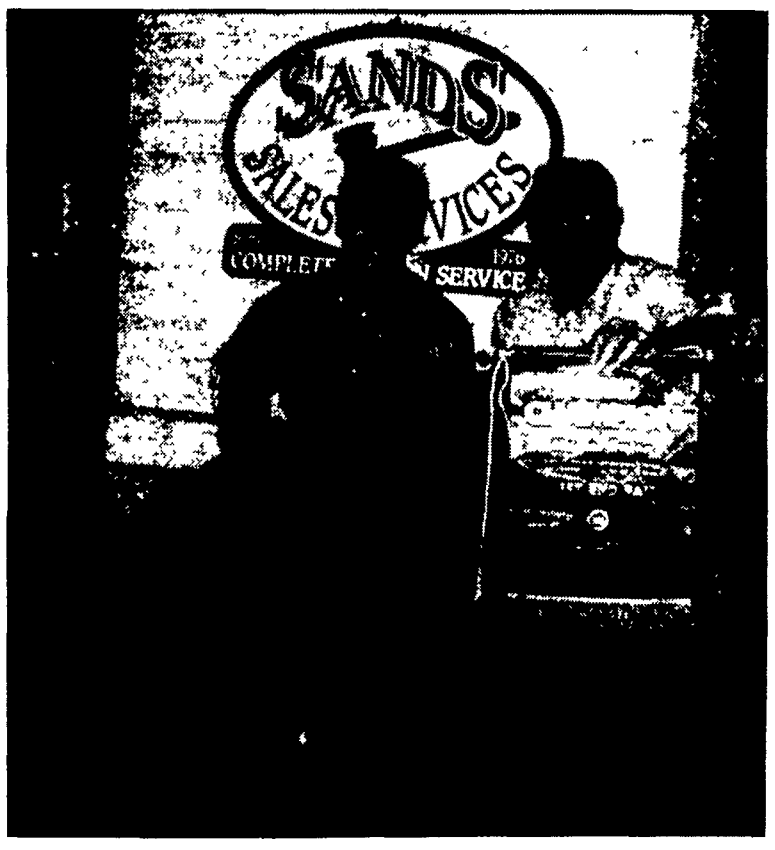
The average sale price for the other 40 hogs was $1.23 per pound.

The grand champion market lamb was purchased by Dennis Keefer for the West Milton State Bank for 5 per pound. The 128-pound lamb was owned by Douglas Wolfe of Mifflinburg.

A 110-pound lamb owned by Kristen Berger of Lewisburg was named reserve champion. It was sold to the Mifflinburg Bank & Trust for $5.60 a pound. The 4-H member is the daughter of Lorri Berger. The average sale's price for the non-champion lambs was $1.53 per pound.

The champion steer buyer was Sue Iddings for the Carriage Corner Restaurant and Idding's Quarry of Mifflinburg. Owner is Douglas Wolfe of Mifflinburg. Barry Sands served as auctioneer.

Dennis Keefer was the champion lamb buyer for the West Milton State Bank. Owner is Douglas Wolfe of Mifflinburg.



Adam Wolfe, Lewisburg, owned the champion hog. Buyer is Robert Hamm for the Country Cupboard Restaurant of Lewisburg.

Silo Association Analyzes Forage Storage Economics

GREEN BAY, Wis. — Recently the board of directors of the International Silo Association (ISA) gathered in Green Bay to discuss recent work done with the University of Wisconsin-Madison and a cost comparison spreadsheet that ISA has developed. "Clearly the general agricultural public needs more information concerning many of the facts of storing forage," comments Bruce Johnson of Wisconsin Ribstone Silo.

According to the ISA and the silo unloading industry, the tower silo is capable of unloading speeds that exceed 1,000 pounds of forage per minute. While recent work documented by the University of Wisconsin (UW) reveals that the high output unloaders are capable of unloading at 1,000 pounds per minute, most operations that use these units average approximately 600 pounds of forage per minute.

"When you consider the time it takes a horizontal storage user to get all of the machinery out, and the time to clean the feed face, it is easy to see how unloading from a tower silo is actually faster than bunkers or bags," notes Johnson. In addition, calculations from the University of Minnesota and power companies show that it costs less than half as much to operate a silo unloader as it costs to operate a skid steer or small tractor.

Filling rates are one of the most important aspects of storing silage. The University of Wisconsin has detailed new packing guidelines for bunker silos. Leroy Shefchik, chairman of the group noted "It is clear that it is very difficult to properly fill a bunker or pile at rates higher than 60 tons of forage (at 65 percent moisture) per hour."

In limited research, ISA has found many operations filling tower silos above 100 tons of forage (at 65 percent moisture) per hour. If 2,000 tons of forage are stored, it will take 33 hours to fill a bunker, and 20 hours to fill a tower silo, for a net savings of 13 hours for machinery and labor. It is apparent that it is less costly to fill a tower silo than horizontal silos.

Another leading economic factor is dry matter loss. Several university studies conclude that the tower silo has dry matter losses of approximately seven percent. The University of Wisconsin in a 1998 report suggests that bunkers on operating dairies in Wisconsin are averaging about 17 percent dry matter loss. There is very little information available on dry matter losses in bag silos, but the most recent numbers from the University of Wisconsin state an overall average dry matter loss of 14.2 percent. After discarding the three worst bags in the study, the dry matter loss average falls to 9.7 percent. Reports from the silo bag industry suggesting two to three percent dry matter losses are based on total wet losses, which according to the University of Wisconsin, "is an inaccurate method of reporting actual feed losses." Dry matter losses represent huge economic losses. Consider that corn silage costs $20. If 2,000 tons of $20 corn silage is initially harvested and you lose 10 percent of the crop, that represents a loss of $4,000. It is clear that saving a couple percent of a total harvest can save thousands of dollars.

"In closing Shefchik said, "All of the items discussed at this meeting point in one direction. It is apparent to us that the tower silo is the most economical way to store forage. The general public has a real lack of awareness about the capabilities of the tower silo. I only wish that those who questioned our methods or conclusions would contact us, so we could start the dialogue."

Galvanized or Galvalume?

For metal roofing and siding, which is better, painted Galvanized or painted Galvalume?. Galvanizing is many times better if it's mill certified G100. Why is it better? Galvanizing tends to "heal" when scratched The more galvanizing, the better. Everlast is ten times better at "healing" than galvalume because galvalume hardly "heals" at all when scratched. Also cut edges rust quickly on galvalume.

PA farmers have great hay crops with South Dakota alfalfa seed. Painterland Farms, Westfield, PA, John Painter said "The Trask's seed grew extremely well. We recommend it to anyone. It is real leafy and yielded as well as any of the high priced name brand seeds. It cost 40% as much. We planted 294 acres. We intend to plant more this spring. It was exceptionally winter hardy and resisted frost damage. We are very pleased.

Join the numerous farmers in the PA/NY area harvesting superb alfalfa from South Dakota seed

Advantages of Crude Soy Oil:
- Use as a direct replacement for animal fat.
- Vegetable based product.
